Ike Indicates He'll Reject A-Spies' Plea

Rosenbergs Ask President For Clemency

Justice Douglas' Decision On Appeal For Stay Awaited

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower reportedly indicated to a group of clemency-pleading clergymen today that he does not plan to commute the death sentence of U. S. atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

"My feeling was that the answer was no," said Dr. Bernard Loomer, dean of the University of Chicato's School of Religion, commenting on Eisenhower's reaction to a plea for commutation of the Rosenbergs' sentence to life imprisonment.

The President's reported stand against any last-minute White House intervention came a few hours after the Rosenbergs sent out a dramatic new appeal for clemency from the death house at Sing Sing Prison.

Urging the President to spare their lives and "prevent a crime worse than murder," the condemned couple declared:

"The guilt, if we die, will be America's."

Douglas' Decision Awaited

Undaunted by repeated setbacks, defense attorneys still clung to Court Justice William O. Douglas might grant their plea for a stay of execution.

Douglas received defense lawyers in his chambers and heard their arguments. Legal experts agreed that although it would be highly unusual for a justice to grant a stay, after the full court had refused to do so, Douglas would be justified if he received hearing.

While Douglas weighed the latest defense arguments, Chief Defense Counsel Emanuel H. Bloch flew here from New York and filed a new petition for executive clemency at the Justice Department.

Poland's Asylum Offer Rapped

In another development, the State Department accused Communist Poland of committing an "impertinence" in offering asylum to the Rosenbergs if this country would free them from prison and permit them to go abroad.

The department rejected the offer as being unworthy of a reply and termed it just another Red propaganda move seeking to embarrass the United States.

Late this afternoon, a group of four clergymen, who claimed to be spokesmen for 2,300 fellow churchmen, spent 30 minutes at the White House pleading with Eisenhower to save the Rosenbergs from the electric chair.

The Rosenbergs are scheduled to die Thursday night at 10 p.m. EST.

Senior Truce Teams Meet At Panmunjom

Senator Asks Ike To Back Up Blast At 'Book Burners'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) called on President Eisenhower today to back up with action his speech criticizing "book burners"—a speech which Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) attacked as "a pitiful thing."

Eisenhower spoke out against "the book burners" in addressing Dartmouth College students Sunday, and said "it is not America" if authors are denied the right to have their books "in places where they are accessible to others."

Hennings told the Senate today that the "current campaign to burn books is at present completely in the control of the Eisenhower administration," and expressed hope it "will end this medieval exhibitionism with firmness and finality."

He obviously referred—as many thought Eisenhower did—to the demand by Sen. McCarthy, acceded to by the State Department, for removal from overseas information libraries of books by Communists and fellow travelers.

"All the State Department has to do is to stop burning books," Hennings said.

But McCarthy told newsmen the President "couldn't very well have been referring to me. I have burned no books."

The senator said he has read a text of the speech and "It's impossible to know to whom he was referring."

He said removal of the books has been ordered by members of Eisenhower's own administration and "obviously he agrees with what his cabinet officers are doing or he would countermand their orders."

"I'm happy," McCarthy added, "that the administration apparently agrees with me and is removing them."

Another Session On Demarcation Line Scheduled

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Allied and Communist top level truce delegates met briefly today and announced they would be in recess until either side requests another session.

MUNSAN, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Truce teams go to Panmunjom today for the first full dress meeting in a week while along the firing line the heaviest fighting in two years threatened to delay the almost-completed armistice.

The session was scheduled for 11 a.m. (9 p.m. Tuesday EST). It was requested by the United Nations Command.

There seemed little chance that agreement would come today.

This was evident in the fact that staff officers at work on the swiftly-changing truce line called another session today after laboring over it without a break for 10 hours and seven minutes Tuesday.

11-Hour Session

Counting an earlier morning session, the map makers toiled just over 11 hours Tuesday, by far the longest such session since the negotiations started almost two years ago.

All sessions, both on the higher level of the truce teams and the lower level of staff officers, were secret, leaving outsiders to guess how close the two sides were to an agreement halting the bloody conflict.

But the prolonged meetings of staff officers carrying maps and the Red broadcasts from Peiping left little doubt that the main weight now is on establishing a truce line—the point of contact from which both sides are to pull back a mile and a quarter before a cease-fire.

Reds Moving Line Southward

Over on the blazing Eastern Front, thousands of Chinese Reds still were in the process of moving this line southward after capturing positions more than two miles deep along a 40-mile mountain sector.

Peiping radio said staff assistants carried a glass-topped "shadbox," lighted with electric bulbs, into the conference room where the truce is being worked out. The box is used to trace map lines.

"All this indicated," Peiping said, "that quick progress in revising the military demarcation line was reaching complete agreement."

But U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had said Monday in Washington that the Red ground offensive raised new obstacles to an armistice agreement.

South Koreans Counterattack On Vital Ridge

15 Enemy Planes Bomb Seoul Area, Setting Huge Fire

SEOUL, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Allied forces today checked the big Chinese Communist prearmistice drive toward Parallel 38 on the East-Central Korean Front.

It remained to be seen whether the Reds biggest offensive since the spring of 1951 had been stopped cold, or just temporarily, but a night-long South Korean counter attack on Finger Ridge was followed by only sporadic encounters.

Not a single combat contact was reported on the Western Front.

South Korean corps headquarters reported in midmorning that the counterattack carried all the way to the crest of Finger Ridge—vital western anchor of the East-Central Front—but a U. S. military adviser said later the report was in error.

The Chinese still held the crest at noon today. Two Chinese regiments—some 6,000 men—captured Finger Ridge Tuesday.

Allies Air Strikes Tell

A responsible American officer advising the Republic of Korea troops said he believed the Chinese were taking it easy for two reasons:

1. Allied air strikes have crippled them.

2. They need more time to move their men and equipment south and to organize.

The strategic ridge had fallen Tuesday to some 6,000 Chinese in a continuation of an apparent Communist pre-armistice drive toward Parallel 38.

Elsewhere on the East-Central Front only probing attacks against ROK positions were reported. In one 15 mile sector the ROKs had been shoved back up to two miles by hordes of Chinese attacking in waves Sunday.

Red Planes Bomb Seoul Area

The ROKs established positions along a new line—north of the Pukhan River—Tuesday.

In the apparent stretch drive to a truce, the Reds had also stepped up their aerial attacks and sabotage behind the lines.

Fifteen Red planes raided the Seoul area for the second time in as many nights in their biggest air blow of the war, touched off a great fire in a fuel dump at the capital's port of Inchon, and set lesser blazes at the nearby airfield of Kimpo.

MIG planes came out of Manchuria and challenged U. S. Sabres. The Fifth Air Force said four MIGs were shot down and three damaged in a series of twilight sky battles.

The unexpected Chinese onslaught on Finger Ridge came just as two South Korean divisions had stabilized that part of the active 40-mile front to the east along the Pukhan River. They had been thrown back two miles under the weight of 30,000 to 40,000-man attacks.

U. S. Steel Hikes Prices Average Of $4 Per Ton

PITTSBURGH, June 16 (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer, said today it is increasing the price of steel an average of $4 a ton. The hike pushes the cost of basic steel to about $120 a ton.

The announcement came just four days after the company granted an 8½ cent hourly pay increase to about 170,000 employes, who had been earning between $2.06 and $2.16 an hour.

Undoubtedly the increase will be reflected in the nation's cost of living budget, since there are few items which do not use steel in their manufacturing.

The company said that along with the average upturn of $4 a ton in the mill price of carbon steel, there are proportionate advances for alloy and stainless steel products. The advance in the finished steel products will differ materially.

U. S. Steel said the overall effect of the price changes effective tomorrow represents an average advance of approximately 2-10th of a cent per pound for carbon steel products.

This will be the first rise in basic steel prices since the end of the long steelworkers strike last summer.

Atlantic, Gulf Port Ship Tieup Hinges On Renewed Talks

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—A threatened Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipping tieup hung today on a new negotiating session.

A contract between Joseph Curran's CIO National Maritime Union and shipping operators expired last midnight. The union agreed to today's meeting at the request of federal mediators.

The union, which traditionally follows a policy of "no contract, no work," banned its 40,000 members from signing on for new voyages pending the outcome of the meeting. But it permitted those already signed on to continue working meanwhile.

East Berliners' "Protest March" Coached By Reds

BERLIN, June 16 (AP)—Under careful Communist coaching, five thousand East Berlin workers today marched on Red headquarters in the Soviet zone to protest speed up decrees increasing their production quotas by ten per cent.

With an equally well-practiced spontaneity, the Socialist Unity (Communist) party politburo immediately denounced the decrees and promised higher wages to "workers who have voluntarily increased their norms."

The fantastic "protest march"—apparently staged with the full cooperation of Red leaders—appeared carefully timed to keep Russia's drive to win public approval for unification of East and West Germany rolling at top speed.

Soviet High Commissioner Vladimir Semyenov, meanwhile, was busy behind the scenes. He was reportedly working on a revival of two "middle-class" parties in East Germany, the Christian Democrats and Liberal Democrats.

Friends said Herman Kastner, forced to resign as Liberal Democratic chairman and deputy premier in 1950 under Communist pressure, had received indications the Russians would welcome his return to political activity.

Observers agreed it would be a logical step for Soviet policy to minimize now the totalitarian power of East German Reds in an effort to convince West Germans that the Moscow peace drive is sincere.

Some political sources predicted Semyenov would soon issue an invitation for a meeting of the four occupation High Commissioners in Germany. They claimed he was waiting to do this after Dr. James B. Conant returns next weekend from the United States.

The five thousand demonstrators today included many Communist party members, wearing Red-flag badges in their lapels. Their mission was to keep some bare-chested plasterers and masons, who had just walked off the job in the Stalin Allee (boulevard) Communist housing project, from losing their tempers.

Ike Nominates Three As Envoys

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower today chose three business men to serve as ambassadors to Norway, Portugal and Brazil.

L. Corrin Strong, 60, of Washington, was nominated for the Norway post, to succeed C. Ulric Bay whose resignation was accepted by Eisenhower. Strong is president of the Hattie M. Strong Foundation, a philanthropic organization, and a member of the board of the National Savings Bank and Trust Company in Washington.

M. Robert Guggenheim, 68, also of Washington, was named ambassador to Portugal to succeed Cavendish W. Cannon, a career diplomat. Guggeinheim, now retired from business, is a former executive of the American Smelting and Refining Company and former secretary and vice president of the U. S. Zinc Company.

James S. Kemper, 66, a Chicago insurance company executive, was picked to succeed Herschel V. Johnson as ambassador to Brazil. Johnson, a career diplomat, retired some time ago.

Three One-Time OSS Employes Refuse To Talk

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Three former employes of the government's top wartime intelligence agency refused today to say whether they are Communists. One also declined to testify whether he had anything to do with executing Americans during the Spanish Civil War.

The one-time employes of the Office of Strategic Services were up for questioning before the Senate internal security subcommittee. The subcommittee is studying Red infiltration into the government.

Three All New Yorkers

The witnesses, all from New York, were:

Milton Wolff, unemployed artist and national commander of the Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, which fought against Generalissimo Franco in the Spanish war in the 1930's. It was Wolff who refused to say whether he had any part in the execution of Americans who joined the brigade and then refused to fight.

Helen Barret Tenney, a faltering, weeping woman whom Elizabeth Bentley, once a courier for a wartime Soviet spy ring, has named as one of her contacts in OSS.

Irving Fajans, free lance writer.

Agitated Witness

All three repeatedly balked at answering questions on grounds the answers might tend to incriminate them.

A small woman in her early forties, Miss Tenney was so agitated and nervous that committee members inquired whether she had been intimidated or threatened with harm if she testified. She said she hadn't.

In response to a question by Sen. Willis Smith (D-NC), she denied in a wavering voice that she had taken medicine, dope or sedatives before appearing on the witness stand.

Pakistan Wheat Voted By Senate

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Senate swiftly passed today a bill giving drought-plagued Pakistan one million tons of wheat from America's big surplus.

It was only six days ago that President Eisenhower sent a special message to Congress proposing the gift. The bill now goes to the House, where administration leaders will try to get it through in time to have the first shipments of wheat reach Pakistan in August.

Later today the House Agriculture Committee gave the bill its ok.

The grain will come out of surplus stocks acquired by the government under price support programs. A million tons amount to about 37 million bushels. Including transportation charges, the gift will cost the government about 100 million dollars.

Conferees Approve Small Business Lending Agency

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Senate-House conferees today agreed upon a two-year extension of some defense mobilization controls and on creation of a permanent Small Business Administration with broad lending powers.

Knocked out of the bill was a watered-down section which would have let the president impose a 90-day freeze on prices, wages and rents in a war crisis, but only after specific congressional sanction.

Sen. Maybank (D-SC) announced he would refuse to sign the conference report because the Senate conferees accepted the new Small Business Administration which had been written in by the House.

This agency is supposed to take over the small business lending functions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which is scheduled to go out of business June 30, 1954.

But Maybank insisted the Senate never had held hearings on the SBA and that there was no assurance it could get the 250 million dollars in lending authority provided in the bill.

He said he was not going to vote for a new agency to handle the lending job of the RFC when there was no assurance SBA would be able to function.

The compromise bill will extend to June 30, 1955 powers of the government to allocate and fix priorities for scarce materials needed in the defense effort.

Some allocations powers over materials for civilian use also are continued, although these are not nearly as broad as in the present Defense Production Act.

Marie Agrees To Try To End French Crisis

PARIS, June 16 (AP)—Apparently assured he can succeed where three others failed before him, Andre Marie agreed today to try to piece together a new French government.

President Vincent Auriol asked Marie to make the effort last Thursday, but it was not until this afternoon—after five days of talking and bargaining with other political leaders—that he gave his assent.

The 55-year-old lawyer had more or less firm promises of support from almost all of the political parties needed to form the same kind of centrist coalition that has been shakily governing France since the general elections in June, 1951.

Negro Faces Execution In Robbery-Slaying

LOGAN, W. Va., June 16 (AP)—Melvin Loveless, Negro hotel owner accused of plotting a robbery in which a woman was slain, was convicted in five minutes today of first degree murder.

The Circuit Court jury here made no recommendation of mercy, making the death sentence automatic.

Loveless, stocky 31-year-old owner of a hotel in Charleston, W. Va., blinked upon hearing the verdict.

His two-day trial was conducted in a tense atmosphere after Judge C. C. Chambers announced receipt of a letter warning him not to call the case for trial yesterday "for the good of yourself, the people and the courthouse."

Loveless was the fifth of six men rounded up after the $600 robbery and shooting of Mrs. Sarah Reed, 52, April 29 in a Charleston apartment. The state contended they were bent on robbery when the apartment was entered and the intruders were confronted by the woman.

U. S. Wouldn't Put On Pressure Like Reds, Wilson Says

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson, commenting on the current Red offensive in Korea, said today Americans wouldn't apply such pressure when a truce was in the offing.

Asked for his reaction to the big-scale drive recently launched by the Communists in Korea, Wilson told a news conference he doesn't think he understands the Oriental mind, but—

"From the American point of view we certainly wouldn't want to put pressure on."

Surgeon Who Performed Operation On Godfrey Dies

BOSTON, June 16 (INS) — Dr. Marius N. Smith-Petersen, the world-renowned surgeon who operated on Radio and Television Star Arthur Godfrey little more than a month ago, died late today.

The 66-year-old surgeon succumbed at Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital where he had been a patient for three and a half weeks.

It was at this hospital that he performed a delicate hip operation on Godfrey. The latter now is convalescing there.

A son of the orthopedic specialist, Dr. Morten Smith-Petersen, of West Newton, said his father died of a heart condition which became serious about a week after the Godfrey operation. Godfrey was very much broken up when informed of the surgeon's death.

Dr. Smith-Petersen was a native of Norway and came to the United States to study at Harvard Medical School, from which he was graduated in 1914.

136 On New Casualty List

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 136 Korean War casualities in a new list (No. 835) that reported 19 killed, 101 wounded, 10 captured and six injured.

Slack Reported On His Way Out

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Ellis N. Slack, a tax prosecutor who has come under fire of a House investigating group, was reported today to be on his way out of the Justice Department.

The reports were that Attorney General Brownell had asked him to leave as part of a major turnover in the legal staff, but Brownell's office had no comment.

Slack himself said, "I prefer not to make any statement."

Slack, 52, has appeared repeatedly before the House judiciary subcommittee during its investigation of legal procedure in the Justice Department under the Truman administration.

He came under criticism for his role in, a grand jury investigation of scandals in the St. Louis Internal Revenue Bureau office in 1951.

Slack was sent to St. Louis by J. Howard McGrath, then attorney general. After Slack appeared before the grand jury, it returned a partial report giving a clean bill of health to the handling of tax cases by the revenue bureau.

Friends said Herman Kastner, forced to resign as Liberal Democratic chairman and deputy premier in 1950 under Communist pressure, had received indications the Russians would welcome his return to political activity.

Observers agreed it would be a logical step for Soviet policy to minimize now the totalitarian power of East German Reds in an effort to convince West Germans that the Moscow peace drive is sincere.

Some political sources predicted Semyenov would soon issue an invitation for a meeting of the four occupation High Commissioners in Germany. They claimed he was waiting to do this after Dr. James B. Conant returns next weekend from the United States.

The five thousand demonstrators today included many Communist party members, wearing Red-flag badges in their lapels. Their mission was to keep some bare-chested plasterers and masons, who had just walked off the job in the Stalin Allee (boulevard) Communist housing project, from losing their tempers.

Marie Agrees To Try To End French Crisis

PARIS, June 16 (AP)—Apparently assured he can succeed where three others failed before him, Andre Marie agreed today to try to piece together a new French government.

President Vincent Auriol asked Marie to make the effort last Thursday, but it was not until this afternoon—after five days of talking and bargaining with other political leaders—that he gave his assent.

The 55-year-old lawyer had more or less firm promises of support from almost all of the political parties needed to form the same kind of centrist coalition that has been shakily governing France since the general elections in June, 1951.

Senior Truce Teams Meet At Panmunjom

Senator Asks Ike To Back Up Blast At 'Book Burners'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) called on President Eisenhower today to back up with action his speech criticizing "book burners"—a speech which Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) attacked as "a pitiful thing."

Eisenhower spoke out against "the book burners" in addressing Dartmouth College students Sunday, and said "it is not America" if authors are denied the right to have their books "in places where they are accessible to others."

Hennings told the Senate today that the "current campaign to burn books is at present completely in the control of the Eisenhower administration," and expressed hope it "will end this medieval exhibitionism with firmness and finality."

He obviously referred—as many thought Eisenhower did—to the demand by Sen. McCarthy, acceded to by the State Department, for removal from overseas information libraries of books by Communists and fellow travelers.

"All the State Department has to do is to stop burning books," Hennings said.

But McCarthy told newsmen the President "couldn't very well have been referring to me. I have burned no books."

The senator said he has read a text of the speech and "It's impossible to know to whom he was referring."

He said removal of the books has been ordered by members of Eisenhower's own administration and "obviously he agrees with what his cabinet officers are doing or he would countermand their orders."

"I'm happy," McCarthy added, "that the administration apparently agrees with me and is removing them."

Pakistan Wheat Voted By Senate

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Senate swiftly passed today a bill giving drought-plagued Pakistan one million tons of wheat from America's big surplus.

It was only six days ago that President Eisenhower sent a special message to Congress proposing the gift. The bill now goes to the House, where administration leaders will try to get it through in time to have the first shipments of wheat reach Pakistan in August.

Later today the House Agriculture Committee gave the bill its ok.

The grain will come out of surplus stocks acquired by the government under price support programs. A million tons amount to about 37 million bushels. Including transportation charges, the gift will cost the government about 100 million dollars.

Negro Faces Execution In Robbery-Slaying

LOGAN, W. Va., June 16 (AP)—Melvin Loveless, Negro hotel owner accused of plotting a robbery in which a woman was slain, was convicted in five minutes today of first degree murder.

The Circuit Court jury here made no recommendation of mercy, making the death sentence automatic.

Loveless, stocky 31-year-old owner of a hotel in Charleston, W. Va., blinked upon hearing the verdict.

His two-day trial was conducted in a tense atmosphere after Judge C. C. Chambers announced receipt of a letter warning him not to call the case for trial yesterday "for the good of yourself, the people and the courthouse."

Loveless was the fifth of six men rounded up after the $600 robbery and shooting of Mrs. Sarah Reed, 52, April 29 in a Charleston apartment. The state contended they were bent on robbery when the apartment was entered and the intruders were confronted by the woman.

Another Session On Demarcation Line Scheduled

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Allied and Communist top level truce delegates met briefly today and announced they would be in recess until either side requests another session.

MUNSAN, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Truce teams go to Panmunjom today for the first full dress meeting in a week while along the firing line the heaviest fighting in two years threatened to delay the almost-completed armistice.

The session was scheduled for 11 a.m. (9 p.m. Tuesday EST). It was requested by the United Nations Command.

There seemed little chance that agreement would come today.

This was evident in the fact that staff officers at work on the swiftly-changing truce line called another session today after laboring over it without a break for 10 hours and seven minutes Tuesday.

11-Hour Session

Counting an earlier morning session, the map makers toiled just over 11 hours Tuesday, by far the longest such session since the negotiations started almost two years ago.

All sessions, both on the higher level of the truce teams and the lower level of staff officers, were secret, leaving outsiders to guess how close the two sides were to an agreement halting the bloody conflict.

But the prolonged meetings of staff officers carrying maps and the Red broadcasts from Peiping left little doubt that the main weight now is on establishing a truce line—the point of contact from which both sides are to pull back a mile and a quarter before a cease-fire.

Reds Moving Line Southward

Over on the blazing Eastern Front, thousands of Chinese Reds still were in the process of moving this line southward after capturing positions more than two miles deep along a 40-mile mountain sector.

Peiping radio said staff assistants carried a glass-topped "shadbox," lighted with electric bulbs, into the conference room where the truce is being worked out. The box is used to trace map lines.

"All this indicated," Peiping said, "that quick progress in revising the military demarcation line was reaching complete agreement."

But U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had said Monday in Washington that the Red ground offensive raised new obstacles to an armistice agreement.

Three One-Time OSS Employes Refuse To Talk

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Three former employes of the government's top wartime intelligence agency refused today to say whether they are Communists. One also declined to testify whether he had anything to do with executing Americans during the Spanish Civil War.

The one-time employes of the Office of Strategic Services were up for questioning before the Senate internal security subcommittee. The subcommittee is studying Red infiltration into the government.

Three All New Yorkers

The witnesses, all from New York, were:

Milton Wolff, unemployed artist and national commander of the Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, which fought against Generalissimo Franco in the Spanish war in the 1930's. It was Wolff who refused to say whether he had any part in the execution of Americans who joined the brigade and then refused to fight.

Helen Barret Tenney, a faltering, weeping woman whom Elizabeth Bentley, once a courier for a wartime Soviet spy ring, has named as one of her contacts in OSS.

Irving Fajans, free lance writer.

Agitated Witness

All three repeatedly balked at answering questions on grounds the answers might tend to incriminate them.

A small woman in her early forties, Miss Tenney was so agitated and nervous that committee members inquired whether she had been intimidated or threatened with harm if she testified. She said she hadn't.

In response to a question by Sen. Willis Smith (D-NC), she denied in a wavering voice that she had taken medicine, dope or sedatives before appearing on the witness stand.

NEW YORK, June 16 (INS) — The National Broadcasting Company announced today that Margaret Truman has signed a contract for nine NBC radio and television appearances during the 1953-54 season.

U. S. Wouldn't Put On Pressure Like Reds, Wilson Says

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson, commenting on the current Red offensive in Korea, said today Americans wouldn't apply such pressure when a truce was in the offing.

Asked for his reaction to the big-scale drive recently launched by the Communists in Korea, Wilson told a news conference he doesn't think he understands the Oriental mind, but—

"From the American point of view we certainly wouldn't want to put pressure on."

Surgeon Who Performed Operation On Godfrey Dies

BOSTON, June 16 (INS) — Dr. Marius N. Smith-Petersen, the world-renowned surgeon who operated on Radio and Television Star Arthur Godfrey little more than a month ago, died late today.

The 66-year-old surgeon succumbed at Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital where he had been a patient for three and a half weeks.

It was at this hospital that he performed a delicate hip operation on Godfrey. The latter now is convalescing there.

A son of the orthopedic specialist, Dr. Morten Smith-Petersen, of West Newton, said his father died of a heart condition which became serious about a week after the Godfrey operation. Godfrey was very much broken up when informed of the surgeon's death.

Dr. Smith-Petersen was a native of Norway and came to the United States to study at Harvard Medical School, from which he was graduated in 1914.

136 On New Casualty List

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 136 Korean War casualities in a new list (No. 835) that reported 19 killed, 101 wounded, 10 captured and six injured.

South Koreans Counterattack On Vital Ridge

15 Enemy Planes Bomb Seoul Area, Setting Huge Fire

SEOUL, Wednesday, June 17 (AP)—Allied forces today checked the big Chinese Communist prearmistice drive toward Parallel 38 on the East-Central Korean Front.

It remained to be seen whether the Reds biggest offensive since the spring of 1951 had been stopped cold, or just temporarily, but a night-long South Korean counter attack on Finger Ridge was followed by only sporadic encounters.

Not a single combat contact was reported on the Western Front.

South Korean corps headquarters reported in midmorning that the counterattack carried all the way to the crest of Finger Ridge—vital western anchor of the East-Central Front—but a U. S. military adviser said later the report was in error.

The Chinese still held the crest at noon today. Two Chinese regiments—some 6,000 men—captured Finger Ridge Tuesday.

Allies Air Strikes Tell

A responsible American officer advising the Republic of Korea troops said he believed the Chinese were taking it easy for two reasons:

1. Allied air strikes have crippled them.

2. They need more time to move their men and equipment south and to organize.

The strategic ridge had fallen Tuesday to some 6,000 Chinese in a continuation of an apparent Communist pre-armistice drive toward Parallel 38.

Elsewhere on the East-Central Front only probing attacks against ROK positions were reported. In one 15 mile sector the ROKs had been shoved back up to two miles by hordes of Chinese attacking in waves Sunday.

Red Planes Bomb Seoul Area

The ROKs established positions along a new line—north of the Pukhan River—Tuesday.

In the apparent stretch drive to a truce, the Reds had also stepped up their aerial attacks and sabotage behind the lines.

Fifteen Red planes raided the Seoul area for the second time in as many nights in their biggest air blow of the war, touched off a great fire in a fuel dump at the capital's port of Inchon, and set lesser blazes at the nearby airfield of Kimpo.

MIG planes came out of Manchuria and challenged U. S. Sabres. The Fifth Air Force said four MIGs were shot down and three damaged in a series of twilight sky battles.

The unexpected Chinese onslaught on Finger Ridge came just as two South Korean divisions had stabilized that part of the active 40-mile front to the east along the Pukhan River. They had been thrown back two miles under the weight of 30,000 to 40,000-man attacks.

Slack Reported On His Way Out

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Ellis N. Slack, a tax prosecutor who has come under fire of a House investigating group, was reported today to be on his way out of the Justice Department.

The reports were that Attorney General Brownell had asked him to leave as part of a major turnover in the legal staff, but Brownell's office had no comment.

Slack himself said, "I prefer not to make any statement."

Slack, 52, has appeared repeatedly before the House judiciary subcommittee during its investigation of legal procedure in the Justice Department under the Truman administration.

He came under criticism for his role in, a grand jury investigation of scandals in the St. Louis Internal Revenue Bureau office in 1951.

Slack was sent to St. Louis by J. Howard McGrath, then attorney general. After Slack appeared before the grand jury, it returned a partial report giving a clean bill of health to the handling of tax cases by the revenue bureau.

District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut Asks For "Qualified" Retirement

Presided At Trial Of Six Communists

BALTIMORE, June 16 (AP)—Judge W. Calvin Chesnut said today he had asked for partial retirement as a judge of the United States District Court here beginning Saturday, his eightieth birthday.

Chesnut, since his appointment by President Herbert Hoover in 1931, has tried cases ranging from a fellow Federal judge convicted of obstructing justice to a bootlegging conviction of a great-grandson of a Maryland governor.

Last year he presided at the trial of six Communist party figures convicted in Baltimore of conspiring to teach violent overthrow of the government.

Chesnut said he had written to President Eisenhower asking for "qualified" retirement, under which he would retain full authority as a federal judge but presumably would not handle a full calendar of cases.

"As the volume of cases in the District Court for Maryland has quite substantially increased recently," he wrote the President, "I hope that my continued judicial service may be found useful."

A lifelong Republican, Chesnut never was active in party politics. His only previous public office was assistant state's attorney.

One of his first acts on the bench was in Cumberland, when he sentenced a great-grandson of Thomas Johnson, first governor of Maryland, to four months in jail on a bootlegging charge. That was May 18, 1939.

Eight years later he was chosen by the Chief Justice of the United States to preside at the trial of Martin T. Manton, senior judge of the Second District U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Manton was convicted of obtaining large sums of money from persons engaged in lawsuits while he was on the bench.

Sentencing Manton to the maximum penalty—two years in prison and a $10,000 fine—Chesnut told him:

"All public office is a public trust, but the judicial office is even more than this. It is a sacred trust."

McKeldin Dedicates Severn River Bridge

ANNAPOLIS, June 16 (AP) — Another link in Maryland's projected highway building program opened today—the new seven-million-dollar Severn River Bridge.

Gov. McKeldin officially dedicated the span this morning in a ceremony lacking fanfare.

He snipped the gold and black ribbons across its northeast end with scissors provided by State Sen. Louis N. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel) and Jerome Cox, 11, who just came out to watch from his home nearby.

Some 200 persons attended the opening ceremony at the half-mile long structure on the Annapolis bypass, which is as yet temporary.

Next year the bridge will be part of a high-speed expressway serving motorists who want to avoid the congested streets of the state capital.

Churchill Opposes Moving Stone Of Scone

LONDON, June 16 (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill is against giving up the Stone of Scone to Scotland.

The Prime Minister told the House of Commons today:

"The coronation stone has been in Westminster Abbey for over 650 years and that is its customary position."

He replied to the suggestion of an English member of Parliament that the Stone be handed over to Scotland to sooth feelings of Scottish Nationalists who want it back.

Children Unhurt As Jet Blows Up, Crashes On Edge Of Playground

FORESTVILLE, Md., June 16 (AP)—An F-86 jet plane blew up in midair this afternoon and crashed to earth on the edge of a school playground where children were playing, but none of the youngsters was injured. Andrews Air Force Base spokesmen said the pilot was killed.

The playground was showered with bits of glass and metal when the larger part of the plane plummeted in a heap against a tree at the edge of the Forestville Elementary School playground, about 200 yards from the school.

Eyewitnesses said the pilot appeared to head his plane into a clump of trees to avoid striking the school building. He was unofficially identified as Capt. Francis T. Evans, of Washington, D.C. The Air Force withheld official identification pending notification of next-of-kin.

The pilot was seen either to jump or be ejected from the plunging plane but a parachute failed to open. His body was found about 50 feet from the wreckage.

The base said the plane, on a routine solo flight, was attached to the 95th Fighter Intercepter Squadron.

Residents said the school is directly under an approach air lane and said planes are constantly flying over.

Fred Spinks, president of the Forestville Citizens Association, said he was an eyewitness to the crash.

While driving home from Washington, he said, he heard a plane engine making "funny noises." He said he looked up and saw the plane coming down nose first and saw a figure jump away from the jet fighter.

"The chute didn't open," Spinks said, "and the figure fell separately from the plane. I saw a dense cloud of black smoke come out of the woods behind the school. Children were playing there."

Propagandist Says Russia Wants Peace

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 16 (AP)—Ilya Ehrenburg, Russia's top propagandist, declared today that the Soviet Union wants to reach agreement "even with those who cordially and long-standingly dislike us."

Ehrenburg obviously was referring to the United States in a conciliatory speech which was in marked contrast thos vitriolic personal hatred of America, spoke at a meeting of the Communist-dominated World Peace Council.

The council, a main instrument of Kremlin peace propaganda, is meeting here apparently to acquaint delegates of 65 countries with the "new look" in Soviet policy.

Co-existence, negotiation and agreement with the West appear to be the theme of the week-long meeting to which Western correspondents were invited.

McKeldin Holds Tax Cut Possible If Peace Comes

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16 (AP) — Taxes could be cut before the federal budget is balanced if peace in Korea is not spoiled by hostilities elsewhere, Gov. McKeldin of Maryland said tonight.

McKeldin also called the excess profits tax harmful to business growth in a speech prepared for delivery at a convention of the National Concrete Burial Vault Association.

The Maryland governor, who nominated President Eisenhower at the Republican convention last summer, qualified his tax pronouncements so they did not contrast directly with those of the administration.

Eisenhower has said the budget must be balanced before taxes are reduced. He also urged Congress among other things to continue excess profits and personal income taxes at their present levels for another six months.

McKeldin forecast government expenditures would drop sharply with the end of the end of war in Korea, and added:

"As long as we gradually are reducing the deficit, we are back on the safer road. We have an obligation and a duty to help and to encourage business as well as to balance the budget.

"Desirable and essential as a balanced budget is, it would mock its own good purpose if business were to be harmed and recession courted in the balancing process."

"Preach Air Power," NATO Pilots Told

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz., June 16 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief of staff, told graduating jet pilots from seven NATO countries today "to preach air power to save Western civilization."

He said that people who do not face the truth or keep up with the rapid strides of aviation must be told repeatedly the facts of air power.

Among the graduates was his only son, 1st Lt. Hoyt S. Vandenberg Jr. In the class were pilots from Belgium, China, Denmark, France, Holland and the United States.

Gasoline Price Hikes Assured

TULSA, Okla., June 16 (AP)—Big buyers of crude oil supported price increases ranging from 10 to 35 cents a barrel in an area from the gulf to Canada today, assuring early raises in the cost of gasoline at the service station.

Eight large companies fell in line behind the trend initiated by Phillips Petroleum Co. yesterday and followed quickly by Humble Oil and Refining Co., the nation's largest producer and buyer.

Carter Oil Co., Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp., and Stanolind Oil Purchasing Co., the country's second largest purchaser, all posted straight 25-cent per barrel hikes.

Pure Oil Co., Republic Oil Refining Co., Cities Service Co., Gulf Oil Corp., and a number of smaller companies joined the advance.

Gulf set 10 to 35 cent boosts in seven states.

In all cases, the companies said the increases were necessary because of substantial rises in labor and material costs.

"Preach Air Power," NATO Pilots Told

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz., June 16 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief of staff, told graduating jet pilots from seven NATO countries today "to preach air power to save Western civilization."

He said that people who do not face the truth or keep up with the rapid strides of aviation must be told repeatedly the facts of air power.

Among the graduates was his only son, 1st Lt. Hoyt S. Vandenberg Jr. In the class were pilots from Belgium, China, Denmark, France, Holland and the United States.

Gasoline Price Hikes Assured

TULSA, Okla., June 16 (AP)—Big buyers of crude oil supported price increases ranging from 10 to 35 cents a barrel in an area from the gulf to Canada today, assuring early raises in the cost of gasoline at the service station.

Eight large companies fell in line behind the trend initiated by Phillips Petroleum Co. yesterday and followed quickly by Humble Oil and Refining Co., the nation's largest producer and buyer.

Carter Oil Co., Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp., and Stanolind Oil Purchasing Co., the country's second largest purchaser, all posted straight 25-cent per barrel hikes.

Pure Oil Co., Republic Oil Refining Co., Cities Service Co., Gulf Oil Corp., and a number of smaller companies joined the advance.

Gulf set 10 to 35 cent boosts in seven states.

In all cases, the companies said the increases were necessary because of substantial rises in labor and material costs.

COURT AUDITOR DIES

Aces Making Tigers Of Korea-Bound Pilots

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent

NELLIS AIR FORCE BASE, Nev.—See these seven aces?

They're tigers.

Bird Col. Clay Tice, on the prowl for MIGs 40,000 feet above Korean soil in an F-86 Sabrejet, was cursing an empty sky.

His gas guage confirmed that he had only a short time to latch onto a red-nosed Communist fighter.

A dry voice crackling in his radio headset grabbed his attention:

"Red Leader to chickens in this area. Have 12 MIGs cornered near the Yalu. Someone come help me before they get away!"

Now commanding officer of the 359th Pilot Training group here, Col. Tice was trying to explain why American Sabrejet pilots have so completely dominated the Korean sky in more than two years of aerial battles.

"I near ran out of gas trying to find that lone Sabre jockey and his MIGs," the colonel tells you. "But the story proves what we tell our students getting in their final training before going to Korea—you've got to be a tiger if you're going to be a good fighter pilot."

When does a fighter pilot become a tiger? When he wheels around "MIG Alley" with a chip on his shoulder and goes home disappointed if a flight of MIGs doesn't try to knock it off. That's Tice's definition.

He tells the kids they're better pilots when they come to Nellis than the average guy they'll fight over Korea. He also tells them they don't get their diplomas until they complete 100 missions to "MIG Alley."

Helping Tice make tigers out of hundreds of jet pilots who stream through Nellis on their way across the Pacific is a seasoned core of veteran instructors who have been through the combat mill. Sprinkled among the six training squadrons are seven combat aces.

Held in awe by their students, they work long days passing on what they learned under fire.

In briefing sessions they tell their students what to do. In the air, they show them how to do it. Back on earth, they point out the mistakes.

Before leaving Nellis, each student must develop confidence in himself and his airplane, master good flying technique and become a tiger.

To give students a realistic taste of what may be in store for them in Korea, several F-86 noses have been painted red to match the MIGs' appearance. The seven aces, or other Korea vets, take turns simulating Communist tactics in outdoor classrooms ranging from sea level to 45,000 feet.

Typifying the Air Force's description of a tiger is Maj. Fred Blesse. The 31-year-old ace has two Korean hitches under his flying suit. Record: 9 destroyed MIGs, one prop-driven LA 9, one probable, three damaged, all in 223 combat missions.

Normally, a pilot is rotated home after his 100th mission. Why did Blesse hang around longer? "If you're going to be a paper hanger, you should hang paper," is the way he explains it.

Tornadoes

There may have been a forwarning of sorts for the Great Lakes region when a small tornado hit there in mid-May. But no one, not even the most astute weather forecaster, predicted the series of hammer blows which hit Michigan and northern Ohio. All told six or more separate tornadoes were logged. The death toll from all of them may reach 150 before all are counted. Hundreds have been injured.

However, there was no warning at all for the residents of an area around Worcester, Mass., which was hit unexpectedly by the worst tornado in New England history. Rescue workers have counted 100 dead and the toll of injured totals more than 1,000. Another 3,000 are homeless.

The frightening thing about a tornado is the suddenness with which it is born and matures into a destroyer. The most warning residents got along the front where the tornadoes hit was a howling noise and the appearance of the tell-tale black funnel twisting its way along the ground, smashing some houses flat, exploding others as if from bomb bursts, stripping trees bare, and blowing heavy trailer trucks off roads. In an area where frame houses are predominant, the destruction and carnage were terrific.

Scientists and others can only try to perceive the reasons why full blown tornadoes should rip into an area which is normally free from anything more than heavy gales in the winter and sharp thunder storms in the summer. There may be some connection between the extraordinary fury of the seasonal tornadoes which bit into the South this year, and the fact that a district normally free of them has been visited, and lashed unmercifully.

Tornadoes are born when a mass of cold air drives a wedge into warm, moist air, making the latter rise rapidly. This sets off the counterclockwise motion which may keep whirling and extending downward to form the awesome black funnel. The only thing predictable about them is the fact that they generally move in a northeasterly direction and die almost as suddenly as they are born.

The search for causes can go back even farther than warm fronts and cold fronts, however. Are there conditions which are making the basic weather patterns more unstable than ever this year? Are cloud seeding experiments or the series of atomic shots over the desert upsetting weather patterns? The majority of weather men and scientists say no to both questions. But they say that the number and character of the more than 130 tornadoes which have taken at least 500 lives thus far this year are "unusual."

Meter Happy

Motorists had always considered a parking meter with some time left on it fair game for the first driver to get his car in the empty stall. Apparently there has never been any court tests of this aspect of the parking situation. Fact is, traffic police recognize the practice of cadging on some one else's nickel as a legitimate custom.

Now comes the Salt Lake City police department with a scheme to uproot meter cadging. A device called a meter eraser uses the pressure caused by the weight of the car to flip the indicator back to zero when a car pulls out. There is no mention of the amount of money it will cost to install the eraser in all of Salt Lake City's meter zones.

The economics of the thing is hazy. For example, would the city take in enough additional revenue to offset the cost of installing the eraser? This is doubtful. Not many motorists give up until the last gun. They'll throw away a dollar on something foolish, but that nickel in the meter seems to have value all out of proportion to its size on the monetary scale. And people are generally so glad to find a place to park they often deliberately loll around until their time is up.

Last, few motorists would like to see an end to the game of "finding the meter with time on it." Nothing quite matches the feeling that comes with (1) finding a downtown parking place, and (2) finding a meter with a fat 45 minutes left on it.

Truce, Not Peace

Even after a truce goes into effect in Korea, at least six months would elapse, according to Secretary of Defense Wilson, before any sizable number of U. S. troops could begin coming home. It would be truce, not peace; and if the UN military strength in Korea should be diminished considerably during the truce, the Chinese Communists would be all the more likely to hold out for exorbitant peace terms.

For that matter, it is still truce, not peace, in Germany and Austria more than eight years after V-E Day. So U. S. troops, and French and British troops, are being maintained on German and Austrian soil in 1953 inasmuch as Communist troops are kept in strength in the Soviet zones of Germany and Austria.

In World War I the defeated German armies dissipated after the armistice, but technically it was still a state of truce for 14 months, until the peace treaty went officially into effect. For 15 years more Allied forces were supposed to remain on German soil (the Rhineland) to ensure German observance of the peace terms.

The U. S. detachments were withdrawn after three years, in protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr. The last of the French occupation troops were withdrawn after 10½ years; six years later Hitler, in defiance of the peace treaty, sent troops to occupy and fortify the Rhineland.

Bombs Unlimited

There was mixed public reaction to the news that the cupboard is full, as far as stockpiles of atomic bombs are concerned. The government must find new cupboards in which to store them.

This review of atomic weapons progress was presented by Atomic Energy Commission officials during a congressional review of the proposed budget for fiscal 1954. It must have been heartening to congressmen and public alike to learn that through allocation for atomic energy work has been decreased, there will be a 25 per cent increase in the output of atomic materials and weapons during the next year.

Along with a statement that "important measures are being taken to strengthen thermonuclear development," AEC Chairman Gordon Dean added parenthetically that one section of the hydrogen bomb plant on the Savannah River, in South Carolina, is already in operation and that in the year commencing July 1 more than $200,000,000 will be spent for projects "associated with the H-bomb."

Approximately $30,000,000 of the new budget will be used in providing for new places to store some of the present stock of atomic weapons and provide for space for those to be manufactured in years to come. The implication is that the nation has achieved the state of "bombs unlimited."

How To Keep Well

"Turn Over, Dear"

Snoring is more tragic than comical because the victim is the listener rather than the sufferer. Exceptions occur, especially when the spouse is a sound sleeper. An acquaintance of mine sleeps in the same bedroom with a trio of loud snorers—her husband and two English bulldogs. She deserves a congressional medal.

The environment is not as serene in other households where, according to estimates, one out of every eight adults practices the buzzsaw art. Men receive most of the blame, probably because they emit louder noises. But as a physician, I have heard complaints from both sides and there is no doubt that the condition is prevalent in the two sexes, particularly after the age of 30.

The cause of snoring is well known but no one has ever been able to utilize this information in preparing a sure-fire cure. Every time we write on the subject, many of our readers send in pet suggestions but they apparently are not too efficient because the nights continue to be shattered by these noises.

The latest remedy is a head halter, or special collar, fastened to the head. The device not only keeps the mouth closed but pulls up the chin and extends the neck. When the head is bent back in this way it rearranges the position of the uvula, the tail-like appendage of the soft palate, in relation to the back of the throat. It does the same with the epiglottis, the fold that prevents food from entering the windpipe. Both the uvula and epiglottis have been incriminated because they are flexible and easily set into vibration.

The head halter in question frequently is used in treating arthritis and other spinal disturbances. The idea of using the apparatus for snoring is said to have originated with a St. Louis physician, Dr. Robert Elman. He recalled that the snoring which occurs during the administration of general anesthesia could be eliminated by pushing up the chin and extending the head. He tried the plan on a newly married man whose snoring proved troublesome; it so disturbed his bride's sleep they were forced to occupy separate cabins during the honeymoon. The collar did the trick. I have had no experience with the halter and have nothing to add except that it might be worth a trial.

As a substitute, a small pillow at the nape of the neck will force the head into marked extension. It is a known fact that anything capable of vibrating will give off sound if set into motion by a stream of air. This is the basic mechanism of snoring although the process is more complex because there are several areas in the nose, mouth and throat that can wave in any breeze. While the uvula and epiglottis are considered the most common offenders, the soft palate itself, the tonsil pillars, and relaxed cheeks and lips are strong contenders. Sleeping on the back induces snoring because it allows the chin to drop and the lower jaw to sag Nocturnal rumblings can be minimized by keeping the mouth closed and by breathing through the nose. Mouth breathing also is encouraged by obstruction of the nasal passageways, as in polyps or deviated septum. Swelling is another possibility and the most common cases are infections such as colds, allergy, and the drinking of alcohol. This type is temporary, however, and swelling and snoring disappear when the causative condition wears off. In children, enlarged adenoids is a factor. Help often follows removal of existing defects but many individuals who have no such disorders continue to make music in the night.

TOMORROW: Don't weaken against insects.

EYES ARE BETTER

W. T. writes: Can throat troubles be diagnosed with the fluoroscope?

REPLY

No. Looking at the throat is the easiest way to diagnose throat troubles. The fluoroscope usually is reserved for investigation of the heart, chest, and digestive tract.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

W. T. writes: I woke up recently with one side of my face paralyzed and the doctor says it is Bell's palsy. What is the cause of this disorder?

REPLY

In many instances, no cause can be found. In others, exposure to a draft and vitamin deficiencies have been blamed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on Bell's palsy.

APPETITE GROWS

A. A. writes: I'm in my 40s and have always been a light eater. Recently I developed an almost uncontrollable appetite but in several months of gorging I remain underweight. Is increased appetite normal for my age group?

REPLY

This sometimes happens. Abnormal appetite is traced occasionally to emotional disturbances or to glandular disturbances such as thyroid overactivity or diabetes.

A BRAIN STRUCTURE

W. C. writes: What is the function of the hypothalamus and where is it?

REPLY

This is a small nerve center at the base of the brain which is concerned mainly with water metabolism.

Malenkov Urges Early Conference With Ike; Sam Rayburn Critical Of Eisenhower; Teamsters' Union Makes Safety Check Of Trucks.

WASHINGTON — INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE — Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov has sent a private message to President Eisenhower, urging a four-power conference immediately. This Russian move is obviously aimed at bringing the Big Four together before the Big Three have a chance to meet. However, the President is going through with the Bermuda meeting first. . . . Ike has taken to telephoning key senators to push his legislative program, a trick that both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman used effectively. For example, Ike personally got on the phone to several senators and swung them behind his Agriculture Department reorganization plan. . . . President Eisenhower has asked the National Security Council to draft a policy statement on what our attitude should be toward Red China after the truce is signed. If Peiping demands diplomatic recognition, it may be a stumbling block at the later political conference to settle the final terms of the Korean peace. . . . Ike talks about 150-words-a-minute on most subjects, speeds up to 200 word-a-minute when he gets on familiar military matters. . . . The President has other recreation besides golf and bridge — namely, playing the mouth organ, reading cowboy stories, watching TV and — running the White House elevator.

Ex-Speaker Confides

Letting his hair down at an off-the-record luncheon, House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn lit into President Eisenhower, but praised Senator Taft the other day in airing his private views on the GOP leadership.

Rayburn was called on for a few words as the only outsider at a private luncheon of Alabama senators and congressmen. He started off with a mischievous twinkle.

"President Eisenhower was born in my district. He was a fine baby, but when he became a Republican, it was his undoing," wisecracked Rayburn.

Then more solemnly he declared: "The country looks to the President for leadership. The President of the United States is the leader. But so far, President Eisenhower hasn't shown any leadership, and the situation is getting worse every day."

The ex-speaker let it be known, however, that he had a different opinion of the ailing Senator Taft.

"A tragic thing happened when Bob Taft had to give up the majority leadership," he declared, "because whether you agree with him or not, he is an honest man and dependable."

Rayburn added that President Eisenhower had to depend on the Democrats to carry out his program.

"That's the way it's going to be throughout his administration," he declared. As a result, he predicted the Democrats would win control of Congress in two years.

"We'll have to wait four years to take the administration," he added. And the twinkle crept back into his eye.

Checking the Trucks

At highway coffee stops this week, at warehouses, railroad yards, and snack bars where truckers congregate, there will take place a unique move for highway safety — the Teamsters' truck check.

Organized by Dave Beck, head of the Teamsters' Union, 5,000 of his members will act as inspectors to check on driving logs, hours of service, brakes, lights and other matters which the Interstate Commerce Commission is supposed to do but doesn't — due partly to inertia, partly to lack of manpower.

The ICC now has exactly 18 truck inspectors to cover the entire U. S. and with some 750,000 trucks hauling freight, chances are remote that each truck gets checked even once a year. So the Teamsters have stepped in, and from Sunday of this week through Friday, will make a friendly contribution to road safety.

The check consists of asking drivers about overloading, whether his company requires him to keep a "squawk-sheet" (list of complaints), do they do anything about complaints; does he have flares on hand to be lit beside the road in case of a breakdown; how often are his brakes inspected; what are his hours of service (ICC regulations specify a 10-hour maximum driving)?

Most drivers and companies welcome the Teamsters' truck check, co-operate fully.

Four-Cent Mail

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield has quietly confided to congressmen that he is planning to hike postal rates. He wants to boost first-class letters from three to four cents and also increase second- and third-class mail.

Revealing his plan behind closed doors of the House Post Office Committee, Summerfield pleaded that the increase was necessary

ROME (INS)—"We stuck her out there in front," the man from the American Embassy said. "What she said had to be said. It wasn't easy to say ,but nobody could say it as well as she could. It wasn't her decision alone, though. It was the decision of the entire embassy, and it was a calculated and necessary risk."

He was talking about the background of Rome's hottest conversational piece: Ambassador Luce's speech at Milan just before the Italian elections. The Communists and neo-Fascist groups leaped on it shrilly, and most observers believe they attracted votes away from the pro-American De Gasperi coalition because of it.

Concluding a speech in which she told of America's genuine interest in Italy's future, Mrs. Luce said, deep in the leftish manufacturing city:

"My president and my people desire for Italy what most Italians desire for Italy—a stable democratic government, a dynamic democracy able to advance her wellbeing and safeguard her freedoms . . .

"In Italy's thrilling forward progress along the ancient highway of her natural greatness, she can count confidently on America's intimate and warm cooperation. We should—we Americans—be very sad to see that forward march checked or diverted.

"But if—and I am required in all honesty to say this . . . but if—though it cannot happen — the Italian people should fall unhappy victim to the wiles of totalitarianism, totalitarianism of the right or the left, there would follow—logically and tragically—grave consequences for this intimate and warm cooperation we now enjoy."

The Communists promptly cried that Americans were dictating to Italians how to vote. The Mussolini (or a reasonable facsimile) lovers whooped up nationalistic feeling. The monarchists, usually more nostalgic than virile, said anti-American things.

Yet it had to be said.

"The Communists poured twice as much money into the election than did the combined parties of the center," the man from the embassy said. "From every report we received we were convinced that they had succeeded in planting in the minds of a great many voters the fiction that America actually was only paying lip-service to the De Gasperi government; that what we really were backing was a new form of fascism.

"We had to fight back against that whispering campaign. The only way to do it, we all agreed, was to have the ambassador do it. We felt that we would clarify the doubts of more voters than we would offend other voters."

Mrs. Luce, who has the courage of a lion, is not among those who feel that we have gotten a poor return on our tremendous investment in Italy. Along with other Americans she would have wished for a more bountifully backed De Gasperi.

"But we can't say the money we've put in here has gone down the drain," she told me. "Our friends won the election. That's the important thing. The Communists once again have failed to seize Italy, despite a tremendous try. We have beaten them, and Italy remains free. If we had not helped her after the war she could not have remained free."

Our friends in the "center" of Italian politics did not do quite as well as they did in 1948 for a number of reasons, a local pundit points out. In 1948 there was a genuine fear of Russian influence here. Czechoslovakia had freshly fallen. The Soviet Union was demainding its pound of flesh in the Italian peace negotiations. U. S. aid was spectacularly open, and in the form of food and clothing. The Pope, in better health then, took a vigorous role in suport of the center.

This time the center had to buck the Malenkov peace program, the uncertainty over the future policies of the Eisenhower administration. Congressional demands that foreign aid be sharply curtailed, the intense unpopularity of the McCarran Immigration Act here, and other distractions. Unquestionably, the fairy-tale coronation of Elizabeth II won tens of thousands of votes for the national monarchist party.

The center contributed to its own loss of strength, it must be said. Not long ago the De Gasperi government pushed through a law which decreed in effect that if it gained over 50 per cent of the popular vote in the actual election, it would be entitled to 65 per cent of the seats.

Turned out to be a tactical blunder on the part of a coalition which professed to want to bring to Italy the American form of elective fair play.

Anyway, the feeling I've sounded around Rome is that our friends in the Italian political picture would have done much worse if the attractive U. S. ambassador had not been here to render them such support as she felt was correct. She has made friends for us.

P. S.—We threw our hats in the air last November because a little over half of our eligible voters voted. The Italian electorate turned out 94 per cent in drenching rains that reached from the Alps to Sicily.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Money Didn't Do It

The moral error of the original Marshall Plan was that it assumed that entire nations could be purchased the way Tim Sullivan used to buy votes in the Bowery. It assumed that friendship was purchasable. It assumed that honor, dignity, self-respect were in some manner related to money transactions.

This has proved to be a fallacious doctrine. Tens of billions of American dollars have been poured into Europe since 1945, but it is the Russian, Jacob Malik, not the American, Winthrop Aldrich, who is cheered by the crowds outside of 10 Downing Street. And in France, the movement away from the United States and toward Soviet Russia is so strong that the debate over a new government is over the question of an American, a neutral, or a pro-Russian orientation.

In South American countries, the United States has become unpopular because most of those countries feel that while the United States has poured billions into rebuilding her former enemies, Germany and Japan, not enough has been done for South American countries. They feel, in particular, that they have been robbed by American price controls, all except Brazil, which gets a high price for coffee. An avowed pro-American probably could not be elected president today in any South American country.

Even in Japan, a dubiousness is setting in about the United States. I recently came across this curiosity: Japanese exchange scholars (erroneously called Fulbright scholars, although the senator never put up a dime for it) feel that they have to be anti-American lest they be accused of having accepted the scholarship as a bribe. That is a new definition of gratitude.

Those who originally attacked the Marshall Plan, and I was one of them, said that this would happen. They were sure that alliances had to be erected on a quid pro quo contractual basis. That is the way the British empire was managed from Elizabeth I to George VI and very successfully too. They knew what they were doing because they stipulated the terms in advance.

When international relations were put on an eleemosynary basis by the late Harry Hopkins, in whose footsteps General George Marshall augustly followed, the confusions of the social worker were substituted for the hard-headed statesman. Instead of laboring in the national interest, our diplomats smeared their butter so thin that nobody is pleased and the enormous handouts which we so liberally gave to friend and foe alike have pleased none but a few parvenus who got rich on the transactions.

In time, this came to be known as the Acheson policy which is still being practiced in 1953 because the old crowd is still in possession of the State Department, the Eisenhower administration not having discovered in almost five months whom to get rid of and how.

So, we have no real friends, not only because money does not buy friendship but because we have been defeated in a war by these same friends whom we hoped to hold as allies by purchase. The Korean War could have been won, as Generals MacArthur, Ridgway and Van Fleet testified, but our allies were opposed to a victory and we got snarled up in the implications of a "United Nations Police Action" and America suffered 136,000 casualties and has been defeated.

When a nation is defeated in war, all other countries review and revise their relationships. This is a hard-headed and selfish world in which the loser is never admired. It would be stupid and untrue to say that Winston Churchill is anti-American, but he is at the head of the country that has most to lose in World War III should it ever come, and he is responsible for caculating what is best for his own country. This is his job and he does it accordingly and, on the whole, well.

Had we won the Korean War, swiftly and sharply, as General MacArthur proposed we should, Churchill would be glorifying the Stars and Stripes in such oratory as is rarely heard in this slangy century. But when we lose—he has to reconsider his situation.

One thing this defeat may do: It may force the United States to reconsider its own position. No matter how the defeat is covered up, it is a fact. Where do we go from here? There can be no waiting too long for that answer.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What person or persons did President Eisenhower have in mind when he told the graduating class at Dartmouth College on Sunday: "Don't join the book burners"?

Many newspaper reporters jumped to the conclusion that the President was aiming his remarks at Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin and wrote that interpretation in their dispatches. But to accept that interpretation is to distort what Mr. Eisenhower said and to place the President in the position of repudiating his own Department of State, which has been removing a few books of questionable authorship from the shelves of its reading rooms abroad. Secretary Dulles was quick to disavow that the President had in mind the overseas book program. But the injustice to Senator McCarthy had already been done in the Monday newspapers.

Not Advocated By McCarthy

Senator McCarthy has never advocated that books which tell what communism is should be removed from the shelves of libraries in this country or abroad. His argument has been that, if the American government buys and distributes books which purport to describe the American way of life and its literature, and the authors are Communists or Communist sympathizers, then the United States Government is putting its stamp of approval on such authors. He contends that the taxpayers' money should not be spent to build up the prestige of such authors, so many of whom have refused to come out openly and tell either of their affiliations or sympathies for the Communist cause. His objection is rather to the concealment of the Communist connections of certain authors—a fraud on the public—than opposition to the circulation of books by avowed Communists or others who tell what communism is.

Apparently James B. Conant, now high commissioner in Germany, agrees that such books should be barred from the American government's overseas libraries, but he declares that there shouldn't be any publicity about it — at least he so testified before a Senate committee on Monday. Secretary Dulles later said he himself feels that, with the meager funds available, the books bought should be on the American way of life and that any persons who want them can buy books about the Communist way of life from the Red government's book shops abroad.

The exact words of President Eisenhower, when carefully examined, do not reveal any evidence that he was discussing overseas libraries at all. The text of that portion of his speech reads as follows:

"Don't join the book burners. Don't think you are going to conceal faults by concealing evidence that they ever existed. Don't be afraid to go in your library and read every book as long as any document does not offend our own ideas of decency. That should be the only censorship.

"How will we defeat communism unless we know what it is — what it teaches? Why does it have such an appeal for men? Why are so many people swearing allegiance to it? It is almost a religion, albeit one of the nether regions.

"Now we have got to fight it with something better — not try to conceal the thinking of our own people. They are part of America and even if they think ideas that are contrary to ours they have a right to have them, a right to record them and a right to have them in places where they are accessible to others. It is unquestioned or it is not America."

"Book Burning" Different Here

With the broad philosophy of tolerance that Mr. Eisenhower expressed, there can be no persuasive dissent. For his statement is an outline of the basis for the freedom-of-speech doctrine of the American republic. Mr. Eisenhower, however, in a sense, didn't present the entire picture—or at least his remarks will be construed as favoring the unqualified right of the Communist party to exist as a political party when the present statutes of Congress condemn any party which has for its object the overthrow of the Government of the United States by violence. In the trial of the 11 Communists convicted before Judge Medina's court the Communists argued that they were being persecuted for political beliefs, but the Department of Justice contended and the jury and higher courts agreed that the activities of the Communist party constitute a conspiracy which goes beyond the political. Certainly no Democrat or Republican is ashamed to reveal his membership in his political party.

There has been "book burning" in America in recent months, but mostly it has been in various states or cities where the public has demanded that the laws against obscenity be enforced against pocket editions of immoral content. The Catholic church and other church organizations have been calling for that kind of censorship, which the President in his above-quoted remarks evidently approves. There have been several instances, too, where communities, responding to demands from local groups, have sought to bar from libraries books that merely tell what communism is. This movement originated long before Senator McCarthy started his anti-Communist crusade.

So it is puzzling to read that Mr. Eisenhower is supposed to be rebuking the Wisconsin senator for expressing a view about books abroad that has been adopted by his own department. The truth is that Mr. Eisenhower was referring to intolerance inside the United States, and he might have added that his broad plea for tolerance covers also the views of Senator McCarthy which so many people would like to suppress just because they don't like his speeches.

Tornadoes

There may have been a forwarning of sorts for the Great Lakes region when a small tornado hit there in mid-May. But no one, not even the most astute weather forecaster, predicted the series of hammer blows which hit Michigan and northern Ohio. All told six or more separate tornadoes were logged. The death toll from all of them may reach 150 before all are counted. Hundreds have been injured.

However, there was no warning at all for the residents of an area around Worcester, Mass., which was hit unexpectedly by the worst tornado in New England history. Rescue workers have counted 100 dead and the toll of injured totals more than 1,000. Another 3,000 are homeless.

The frightening thing about a tornado is the suddenness with which it is born and matures into a destroyer. The most warning residents got along the front where the tornadoes hit was a howling noise and the appearance of the tell-tale black funnel twisting its way along the ground, smashing some houses flat, exploding others as if from bomb bursts, stripping trees bare, and blowing heavy trailer trucks off roads. In an area where frame houses are predominant, the destruction and carnage were terrific.

Scientists and others can only try to perceive the reasons why full blown tornadoes should rip into an area which is normally free from anything more than heavy gales in the winter and sharp thunder storms in the summer. There may be some connection between the extraordinary fury of the seasonal tornadoes which bit into the South this year, and the fact that a district normally free of them has been visited, and lashed unmercifully.

Tornadoes are born when a mass of cold air drives a wedge into warm, moist air, making the latter rise rapidly. This sets off the counterclockwise motion which may keep whirling and extending downward to form the awesome black funnel. The only thing predictable about them is the fact that they generally move in a northeasterly direction and die almost as suddenly as they are born.

The search for causes can go back even farther than warm fronts and cold fronts, however. Are there conditions which are making the basic weather patterns more unstable than ever this year? Are cloud seeding experiments or the series of atomic shots over the desert upsetting weather patterns? The majority of weather men and scientists say no to both questions. But they say that the number and character of the more than 130 tornadoes which have taken at least 500 lives thus far this year are "unusual."

Meter Happy

Motorists had always considered a parking meter with some time left on it fair game for the first driver to get his car in the empty stall. Apparently there has never been any court tests of this aspect of the parking situation. Fact is, traffic police recognize the practice of cadging on some one else's nickel as a legitimate custom.

Now comes the Salt Lake City police department with a scheme to uproot meter cadging. A device called a meter eraser uses the pressure caused by the weight of the car to flip the indicator back to zero when a car pulls out. There is no mention of the amount of money it will cost to install the eraser in all of Salt Lake City's meter zones.

The economics of the thing is hazy. For example, would the city take in enough additional revenue to offset the cost of installing the eraser? This is doubtful. Not many motorists give up until the last gun. They'll throw away a dollar on something foolish, but that nickel in the meter seems to have value all out of proportion to its size on the monetary scale. And people are generally so glad to find a place to park they often deliberately loll around until their time is up.

Last, few motorists would like to see an end to the game of "finding the meter with time on it." Nothing quite matches the feeling that comes with (1) finding a downtown parking place, and (2) finding a meter with a fat 45 minutes left on it.

Truce, Not Peace

Even after a truce goes into effect in Korea, at least six months would elapse, according to Secretary of Defense Wilson, before any sizable number of U. S. troops could begin coming home. It would be truce, not peace; and if the UN military strength in Korea should be diminished considerably during the truce, the Chinese Communists would be all the more likely to hold out for exorbitant peace terms.

For that matter, it is still truce, not peace, in Germany and Austria more than eight years after V-E Day. So U. S. troops, and French and British troops, are being maintained on German and Austrian soil in 1953 inasmuch as Communist troops are kept in strength in the Soviet zones of Germany and Austria.

In World War I the defeated German armies dissipated after the armistice, but technically it was still a state of truce for 14 months, until the peace treaty went officially into effect. For 15 years more Allied forces were supposed to remain on German soil (the Rhineland) to ensure German observance of the peace terms.

The U. S. detachments were withdrawn after three years, in protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr. The last of the French occupation troops were withdrawn after 10½ years; six years later Hitler, in defiance of the peace treaty, sent troops to occupy and fortify the Rhineland.

Bombs Unlimited

There was mixed public reaction to the news that the cupboard is full, as far as stockpiles of atomic bombs are concerned. The government must find new cupboards in which to store them.

This review of atomic weapons progress was presented by Atomic Energy Commission officials during a congressional review of the proposed budget for fiscal 1954. It must have been heartening to congressmen and public alike to learn that through allocation for atomic energy work has been decreased, there will be a 25 per cent increase in the output of atomic materials and weapons during the next year.

Along with a statement that "important measures are being taken to strengthen thermonuclear development," AEC Chairman Gordon Dean added parenthetically that one section of the hydrogen bomb plant on the Savannah River, in South Carolina, is already in operation and that in the year commencing July 1 more than $200,000,000 will be spent for projects "associated with the H-bomb."

Approximately $30,000,000 of the new budget will be used in providing for new places to store some of the present stock of atomic weapons and provide for space for those to be manufactured in years to come. The implication is that the nation has achieved the state of "bombs unlimited."

"Turn Over, Dear"

Snoring is more tragic than comical because the victim is the listener rather than the sufferer. Exceptions occur, especially when the spouse is a sound sleeper. An acquaintance of mine sleeps in the same bedroom with a trio of loud snorers—her husband and two English bulldogs. She deserves a congressional medal.

The environment is not as serene in other households where, according to estimates, one out of every eight adults practices the buzzsaw art. Men receive most of the blame, probably because they emit louder noises. But as a physician, I have heard complaints from both sides and there is no doubt that the condition is prevalent in the two sexes, particularly after the age of 30.

The cause of snoring is well known but no one has ever been able to utilize this information in preparing a sure-fire cure. Every time we write on the subject, many of our readers send in pet suggestions but they apparently are not too efficient because the nights continue to be shattered by these noises.

The latest remedy is a head halter, or special collar, fastened to the head. The device not only keeps the mouth closed but pulls up the chin and extends the neck. When the head is bent back in this way it rearranges the position of the uvula, the tail-like appendage of the soft palate, in relation to the back of the throat. It does the same with the epiglottis, the fold that prevents food from entering the windpipe. Both the uvula and epiglottis have been incriminated because they are flexible and easily set into vibration.

The head halter in question frequently is used in treating arthritis and other spinal disturbances. The idea of using the apparatus for snoring is said to have originated with a St. Louis physician, Dr. Robert Elman. He recalled that the snoring which occurs during the administration of general anesthesia could be eliminated by pushing up the chin and extending the head. He tried the plan on a newly married man whose snoring proved troublesome; it so disturbed his bride's sleep they were forced to occupy separate cabins during the honeymoon. The collar did the trick. I have had no experience with the halter and have nothing to add except that it might be worth a trial.

As a substitute, a small pillow at the nape of the neck will force the head into marked extension. It is a known fact that anything capable of vibrating will give off sound if set into motion by a stream of air. This is the basic mechanism of snoring although the process is more complex because there are several areas in the nose, mouth and throat that can wave in any breeze. While the uvula and epiglottis are considered the most common offenders, the soft palate itself, the tonsil pillars, and relaxed cheeks and lips are strong contenders. Sleeping on the back induces snoring because it allows the chin to drop and the lower jaw to sag. Nocturnal rumblings can be minimized by keeping the mouth closed and by breathing through the nose. Mouth breathing also is encouraged by obstruction of the nasal passageways, as in polyps or deviated septum. Swelling is another possibility and the most common cases are infections such as colds, allergy, and the drinking of alcohol. This type is temporary, however, and swelling and snoring disappear when the causative condition wears off. In children, enlarged adenoids is a factor. Help often follows removal of existing defects but many individuals who have no such disorders continue to make music in the night.

EYES ARE BETTER

W. T. writes: Can throat troubles be diagnosed with the fluoroscope?

REPLY

No. Looking at the throat is the easiest way to diagnose throat troubles. The fluoroscope usually is reserved for investigation of the heart, chest, and digestive tract.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

W. T. writes: I woke up recently with one side of my face paralyzed and the doctor says it is Bell's palsy. What is the cause of this disorder?

REPLY

In many instances, no cause can be found. In others, exposure to a draft and vitamin deficiencies have been blamed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on Bell's palsy.

APPETITE GROWS

A. A. writes: I'm in my 40s and have always been a light eater. Recently I developed an almost uncontrollable appetite but in several months of gorging I remain underweight. Is increased appetite normal for my age group?

REPLY

This sometimes happens. Abnormal appetite is traced occasionally to emotional disturbances or to glandular disturbances such as thyroid overactivity or diabetes.

Ex-Speaker Confides

Letting his hair down at an off-the-record luncheon, House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn lit into President Eisenhower, but praised Senator Taft the other day inasairing his private views on the GOP leadership.

Rayburn was called on for a few words as the only outsider at a private luncheon of Alabama senators and congressmen. He started off with a mischievous twinkle.

"President Eisenhower was born in my district. He was a fine baby, but when he became a Republican, it was his undoing," wisecracked Rayburn.

Then more solemnly he declared: "The country looks to the President for leadership. The President of the United States is the leader. But so far, President Eisenhower hasn't shown any leadership, and the situation is getting worse every day."

The ex-speaker let it be known, however, that he had a different opinion of the ailing Senator Taft.

"A tragic thing happened when Bob Taft had to give up the majority leadership," he declared, "because whether you agree with him or not, he is an honest man and dependable."

Rayburn added that President Eisenhower had to depend on the Democrats to carry out his program.

"That's the way it's going to be throughout his administration," he declared. As a result, he predicted the Democrats would win control of Congress in two years.

"We'll have to wait four years to take the administration," he added. And the twinkle crept back into his eye.

Checking the Trucks

At highway coffee stops this week, at warehouses, railroad yards, and snack bars where truckers congregate, there will take place a unique move for highway safety — the Teamsters' truck check.

Organized by Dave Beck, head of the Teamsters' Union, 5,000 of his members will act as inspectors to check on driving logs, hours of service, brakes, lights and other matters which the Interstate Commerce Commission is supposed to do but doesn't — due partly to inertia, partly to lack of manpower.

The ICC now has exactly 18 truck inspectors to cover the entire U. S. and with some 750,000 trucks hauling freight, chances are remote that each truck gets checked even once a year. So the Teamsters have stepped in, and from Sunday of this week through Friday, will make a friendly contribution to road safety.

The check consists of asking drivers about overloading, whether his company requires him to keep a "squawk-sheet" (list of complaints), do they do anything about complaints; does he have flares on hand to be lit beside the road in case of a breakdown; how often are his brakes inspected; what are his hours of service (ICC regulations specify a 10-hour maximum driving)?

Most drivers and companies welcome the Teamsters' truck check, co-operate fully.

ROME (INS)—"We stuck her out there in front," the man from the American Embassy said. "What she said had to be said. It wasn't easy to say ,but nobody could say it as well as she could. It wasn't her decision alone, though. It was the decision of the entire embassy, and it was a calculated and necessary risk."

He was talking about the background of Rome's hottest conversational piece: Ambassador Luce's speech at Milan just before the Italian elections. The Communists and neo-Fascist groups leaped on it shrilly, and most observers believe they attracted votes away from the pro-American De Gasperi coalition because of it.

"My president and my people desire for Italy what most Italians desire for Italy—a stable democratic government, a dynamic democracy able to advance her wellbeing and safeguard her freedoms . . .

"In Italy's thrilling forward progress along the ancient highway of her natural greatness, she can count confidently on America's intimate and warm cooperation. We should—we Americans—be very sad to see that forward march checked or diverted.

"But if—and I am required in all honesty to say this . . . but if—though it cannot happen — the Italian people should fall unhappy victim to the wiles of totalitarianism, totalitarianism of the right or the left, there would follow—logically and tragically—grave consequences for this intimate and warm cooperation we now enjoy."

The Communists promptly cried that Americans were dictating to Italians how to vote. The Mussolini (or a reasonable facsimile) lovers whooped up nationalistic feeling. The monarchists, usually more nostalgic than virile, said anti-American things.

Yet it had to be said.

The Communists poured twice as much money into the election than did the combined parties of the center," the man from the embassy said. "From every report we received we were convinced that they had succeeded in planting in the minds of a great many voters the fiction that America actually was only paying lip-service to the De Gasperi government; that what we really were backing was a new form of fascism.

"We had to fight back against that whispering campaign. The only way to do it, we all agreed, was to have the ambassador do it. We felt that we would clarify the doubts of more voters than we would offend other voters."

Mrs. Luce, who has the courage of a lion, is not among those who feel that we have gotten a poor return on our tremendous investment in Italy. Along with other Americans she would have wished for a more bountifully backed De Gasperi.

"But we can't say the money we've put in here has gone down the drain," she told me. "Our friends won the election. That's the important thing. The Communists once again have failed to seize Italy, despite a tremendous try. We have beaten them, and Italy remains free. If we had not helped her after the war she could not have remained free."

Our friends in the "center" of Italian politics did not do quite as well as they did in 1948 for a number of reasons, a local pundit points out. In 1948 there was a genuine fear of Russian influence here. Czechoslovakia had freshly fallen. The Soviet Union was demainding its pound of flesh in the Italian peace negotiations. U. S. aid was spectacularly open, and in the form of food and clothing. The Pope, in better health then, took a vigorous role in suport of the center.

This time the center had to buck the Malenkov peace program, the uncertainty over the future policies of the Eisenhower administration. Congressional demands that foreign aid be sharply curtailed, the intense unpopularity of the Mccarran Immigration Act here, and other distractions. Unquestionably, the fairy-tale coronation of Elizabeth II won tens of thousands of votes for the national monarchist party.

The center contributed to its own loss of strength, it must be said. Not long ago the De Gasperi government pushed through a law which decreed in effect that if it gained over 50 per cent of the popular vote in the actual election, it would be entitled to 65 per cent of the seats.

Turned out to be a tactical blunder on the part of a coalition which professed to want to bring to Italy the American form of elective fair play.

Anyway, the feeling I've sounded around Rome is that our friends in the Italian political picture would have done much worse if the attractive U. S. ambassador had not been here to render them such support as she felt was correct. She has made friends for us.

P. S.—We threw our hats in the air last November because a little over half of our eligible voters voted. The Italian electorate turned out 94 per cent in drenching rains that reached from the Alps to Sicily.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Money Didn't Do It

The moral error of the original Marshall Plan was that it assumed that entire nations could be purchased the way Tim Sullivan used to buy votes in the Bowery. It assumed that friendship was purchasable. It assumed that honor, dignity, self-respect were in some manner related to money transactions.

This has proved to be a fallacious doctrine. Tens of billions of American dollars have been poured into Europe since 1945, but it is the Russian, Jacob Malik, not the American, Winthrop Aldrich, who is cheered by the crowds outside of 10 Downing Street. And in France, the movement away from the United States and toward Soviet Russia is so strong that the debate over a new government is over the question of an American, a neutral, or a pro-Russian orientation.

In South American countries, the United States has become unpopular because most of those countries feel that while the United States has poured billions into rebuilding her former enemies, Germany and Japan, not enough has been done for South American countries. They feel, in particular, that they have been robbed by American price controls, all except Brazil, which gets a high price for coffee. An avowed pro-American probably could not be elected president today in any South American country.

Even in Japan, a dubiousness is setting in about the United States. I recently came across this curiosity: Japanese exchange scholars (erroneously called Fulbright scholars, although the senator never put up a dime for it) feel that they have to be anti-American lest they be accused of having accepted the scholarship as a bribe. That is a new definition of gratitude.

Those who originally attacked the Marshall Plan, and I was one of them, said that this would happen. They were sure that alliances had to be erected on a quid pro quo contractual basis. That is the way the British empire was managed from Elizabeth I to George VI and very successfully too. They knew what they were doing because they stipulated the terms in advance.

When international relations were put on an eleemosynary basis by the late Harry Hopkins, in whose footsteps General George Marshall augustly followed, the confusions of the social worker were substituted for the hard-headed statesman. Instead of laboring in the national interest, our diplomats smeared their butter so thin that nobody is pleased and the enormous handouts which we so liberally gave to friend and foe alike have pleased none but a few parvenus who got rich on the transactions.

In time, this came to be known as the Acheson policy which is still being practiced in 1953 because the old crowd is still in possession of the State Department, the Eisenhower administration not having discovered in almost five months whom to get rid of and how.

So, we have no real friends, not only because money does not buy friendship but because we have been defeated in a war by these same friends whom we hoped to hold as allies by purchase. The Korean War could have been won, as Generals MacArthur, Ridgway and Van Fleet testified, but our allies were opposed to a victory and we got snarled up in the implications of a "United Nations Police Action" and America suffered 136,000 casualties and has been defeated.

When a nation is defeated in war, all other countries review and revise their relationships. This is a hard-headed and selfish world in which the loser is never admired. It would be stupid and untrue to say that Winston Churchill is anti-American, but he is at the head of the country that has most to lose in World War III should it ever come, and he is responsible for caculating what is best for his own country. This is his job and he does it accordingly and, on the whole, well.

Had we won the Korean War, swiftly and sharply, as General MacArthur proposed we should, Churchill would be glorifying the Stars and Stripes in such oratory as is rarely heard in this slangy century. But when we lose—he has to reconsider his situation.

One thing this defeat may do: It may force the United States to reconsider its own position. No matter how the defeat is covered up, it is a fact. Where do we go from here? There can be no waiting too long for that answer.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What person or persons did President Eisenhower have in mind when he told the graduating class at Dartmouth College on Sunday: "Don't join the book burners"?

Many newspaper reporters jumped to the conclusion that the President was aiming his remarks at Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin and wrote that interpretation in their dispatches. But to accept that interpretation is to distort what Mr. Eisenhower said and to place the President in the position of repudiating his own Department of State, which has been removing a few books of questionable authorship from the shelves of its reading rooms abroad. Secretary Dulles was quick to disavow that the President had in mind the overseas book program. But the injustice to Senator McCarthy had already been done in the Monday newspapers.

Not Advocated By McCarthy

Senator McCarthy has never advocated that books which tell what communism is should be removed from the shelves of libraries in this country or abroad. His argument has been that, if the American government buys and distributes books which purport to describe the American way of life and its literature, and the authors are Communists or Communist sympathizers, then the United States Government is putting its stamp of approval on such authors. He contends that the taxpayers' money should not be spent to build up the prestige of such authors, so many of whom have refused to come out openly and tell either of their affiliations or sympathies for the Communist cause. His objection is rather to the concealment of the Communist connections of certain authors—a fraud on the public—than opposition to the circulation of books by avowed Communists or others who tell what communism is.

Apparently James B. Conant, now high commissioner in Germany, agrees that such books should be barred from the American government's overseas libraries, but he declares that there shouldn't be any publicity about it — at least he so testified before a Senate committee on Monday. Secretary Dulles later said he himself feels that, with the meager funds available, the books bought should be on the American way of life and that any persons who want them can buy books about the Communist way of life from the Red government's book shops abroad.

The exact words of President Eisenhower, when carefully examined, do not reveal any evidence that he was discussing overseas libraries at all. The text of that portion of his speech reads as follows:

"Don't join the book burners. Don't think you are going to conceal faults by concealing evidence that they ever existed. Don't be afraid to go in your library and read every book as long as any document does not offend our own ideas of decency. That should be the only censorship.

"How will we defeat communism unless we know what it is — what it teaches? Why does it have such an appeal for men? Why are so many people swearing allegiance to it? It is almost a religion, albeit one of the nether regions.

"Now we have got to fight it with something better — not try to conceal the thinking of our own people. They are part of America and even if they think ideas that are contrary to ours they have a right to have them, a right to record them and a right to have them in places where they are accessible to others. It is unquestioned or it is not America."

"Book Burning" Different Here

With the broad philosophy of tolerance that Mr. Eisenhower expressed, there can be no persuasive dissent. For his statement is an outline of the basis for the freedom-of-speech doctrine of the American republic. Mr. Eisenhower, however, in a sense, didn't present the entire picture—or at least his remarks will be construed as favoring the unqualified right of the Communist party to exist as a political party when the present statutes of Congress condemn any party which has for its object the overthrow of the Government of the United States by violence. In the trial of the 11 Communists convicted before Judge Medina's court the Communists argued that they were being persecuted for political beliefs, but the Department of Justice contended and the jury and higher courts agreed that the activities of the Communist party constitute a conspiracy which goes beyond the political. Certainly no Democrat or Republican is ashamed to reveal his membership in his political party.

There has been "book burning" in America in recent months, but mostly it has been in various states or cities where the public has demanded that the laws against obscenity be enforced against pocket editions of immoral content. The Catholic church and other church organizations have been calling for that kind of censorship, which the President in his above-quoted remarks evidently approves. There have been several instances, too, where communities, responding to demands from local groups, have sought to bar from libraries books that merely tell what communism is. This movement originated long before Senator McCarthy started his anti-Communist crusade.

So it is puzzling to read that Mr. Eisenhower is supposed to be rebuking the Wisconsin senator for expressing a view about books abroad that has been adopted by his own department. The truth is that Mr. Eisenhower was referring to intolerance inside the United States, and he might have added that his broad plea for tolerance covers also the views of Senator McCarthy which so many people would like to suppress just because they don't like his speeches.

Butler Charges Labor Dept. Is Haven For New Dealers

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Sen. John M. Butler (R-Md) told the Senate yesterday that the Labor Department under Secretary of Labor Durkin is a haven for 'hard core New Dealers" and what he termed "crypto-socialists."

Butler said in a speech that top advisers who served in the Democratic administration have been retained in the same jobs by Durkin and are fighting actively to protect the jobs of holdover employees of the National Labor Relations Board, whom he described as showing "left wing attitudes."

"This is scarcely in harmony with the desires of the new administration to bring into government people who will carry out the philosophy of the new administration and assist in reversing the socialistic trend of government for the past 20 years," he said, adding:

"The time for positive corrective action is now."

Butler said the regional director of the labor department's wage-hour division, "a holdover from the previous administration," recited in a recent speech to the Maryland Federation of Labor some "completely false and misleading" statistics. The man's objective, Butler said, was to show "that businessmen are greedy and unscrupulous," in good times as well as bad times.

And, he said, "we now find the same new deal group that has been bitterly fighting for Taft-Hartley (labor law) repeal is advising the new administration as to what amendments should be made to the act. The press reports indicate that the proposals which this group is advocating as an administration position would amount to virtual repeal of all features of the act except those that were carried over from the Wagner Act."

Pretty Collegian Pleads Innocent To Slaying Baby

WATERVILLE, Me., June 16 (AP)—A pretty blonde Colby College senior calmly pleaded innocent yesterday—commencement day—to a charge that she murdered her unwanted baby and kept the body hidden in a trunk for five months.

Miss Harriet Sart was held without bail for the October term of Kennebec County Superior Court.

The comely 21-year-old girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert D. Sart of Nahant, Mass., sat in Municipal Court holding each other's hands.

Miss Sart was ordered committed to the county jail at Augusta. Her counsel indicated that an effort would be made before Superior Court in Augusta to obtain her release on bail.

The decomposed body of an infant girl was found stuffed in a trunk Sunday by a janitor investigating a strange odor in the basement of a women's dormitory. The trunk bore Miss Sart's name.

County Atty. Joseph Campbell quoted her as saying she bore the baby unassisted Jan. 15 in a dormitory room where she lived alone. She missed only one day's classes, Campbell said.

He added that Miss Sart told him she planned to ship home the trunk and its contents

Now, how about cost? Lux Liquid Detergent is far more economical than the best-selling laundry powder.

Just a few drops wash the dishes. One trial will show you how little you have to use.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Things one New Yorker thinks about: It's been a long time since we came through with a report to the nation on the Broadway theatrical fare. "Last Two Weeks" signs hang in some box offices, a normal state of affairs for summer, but a few hardy perennials will go straight, through the dog days without a long breath. Remember, if you're coming to town for a vacation or a weekend, there are two ways you may see the hit shows: (1) order your tickets by mail, ahead of time, or (2) turn up at the box offices around 8 p. m. the night of the show, in the hope of getting a returned ticket or two. As for just barging into town cold and saying, "Let's go see "Guys and Dolls" tonight"—it can't be done.

The show, "Guys," incidentally, while an oldtimer, still is my choice of the best one in town. The original cast has virtually vanished, but spies tell me the quality still is top-drawer . . . The best-acted play, collectively, must be Inge's "Picnic." Reminded me a good deal of his other hit play, "Come Back, Little Sheba," in that both were fairly decent dramas, beautifully acted . . . Miss Beatrice Lillie and her one-woman show are just about to pull up stakes and go on the road, I understand. Won't bother me too much. I thought it over-praised. I'm not a Lillie fanatic and I find her material like Dorothy Parker's poems—stunning at first, but not wearing too well.

"Porgy and Bess" is the top opera in town, no matter what Puccini or Verdi items turn up elsewhere. Three actors alternate as Porgy and if you are lucky, William Warfield may have returned from his concert tour to take over the role by the time you arrive in New York . . . Maurice Evans in "Dial M for Murder" makes for a handsome, comfortable, engrossing evening in the theater . . . One of the girls I love, Helen Gallgher, makes the musical "Hazel Flagg" easier to sit through. The musical that got all the awards this spring is the new "Wonderful Town," but I'm in the minority there. It could be that Rosalind Rusell's charm eludes me.

Another long-timer definitely worth seeing is "The Moon Is Blue," in which it's so absorbing to watch Donald Cook over-act skillfully. This one's leaving soon, too, though . . . "My Three Angels" is light but entertaining, with an almost unnoticed fine bit of acting by Carmen Mathews . . . I guess Cole Porter's "Can-Can" has settled down for a long run, despite reserved enthusiasm by the critics, but I've been listening to the songs from it patiently on the radio and still am not sold. Can it be that Porter is also like Dorothy Parker and Bea Lillie and doesn't hold up over the years too well? Or am I getting old?

They tell me "The Children's Hour" has some fine acting in it—thank the Lord it's brought Patricia Neal back to Broadway, anyway—but I've missed seeing it. Lillian Hellman's plays always have seemed to be extremely well-written and somewhat dull. Even ones with shocking plots like this.

You might care to back to "The King and I"; Alfred Drake has replaced Yul Brynner as the King and Miss Constance Carpenter reportedly is doing real fine as the late Gertrude Lawrence's replacement . . . Everybody seems agreed that one of the best performances of the season has been wistful little Menasha Skulnik's in "The Fifth Season" (the garment industry's five seasons: winter, spring, summer, fall and slack).

Vanessa Brown, another of the girls I love (let's see — Evelyn Knight, Vanessa, Helen Gallagher, Betty and Jane Kean, Joan Caulfield, Lee Grant and a handful of others), makes "The Seven Year Itch" a sheer delight—wait'll you see her in that opening-scene red velvet gown — and every woman will see her own husband in Tom Ewell.

Last time I looked, "The Crucible" was still drawing healthy amounts of customers, possibly on the strength of Arthur Kennedy's name, but I thought it a little labored. Any rate, it's pretty heavy going . . . The critics pasted Melvyn Douglas' "Time Out for Ginger," but it's in its "7th hilarious month," as the ads say. So much for critics . . . And if you want coolness and spectacle, "A Night in Venice" will be entertaining the cash customers in the stadium at Jones Beach, the world's greatest beach, shortly.

There's a special waistline "girdler" to underscore each of today's varying waistline styles!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

With the waistline wandering currently from low through normal to bosom height, if you are fashion-minded you can easily find yourself with a wardrobe featuring all three placements.

The only thing that's certain about waistlines is that if yours is to look as smart as it should under wispy summer fashions, you'd better be pretty smart yourself about the controls your select.

It's true that several types of foundations are specifically designed to give your waist a lovely definition under various placements in clothing waistlines. But, since there is a foundation for every figure and fashion, and since for comfort and daintiness every woman needs several changes, why not diversify those you own so you can properly underscore your every costume?

For normal waistlines, a girdle built up with a two-inch band provides a sufficiently refined contour. For a higher waistline, a girdle that rises up to the band of the brassiere or an all-in-one foundation is needed to give a figure a "put-together" look. When the dress has a low-waist design, a girdle that eases your waist into your hip section without a break or bulge is indicated and for the sake of smoothness, this waist-level girdle should be worn with a long-line bra.

To obtain detailed information on the best type of corsetry for any figure problem, send for our booklet, "Figured for You." You will find directions for obtaining a copy at the conclusion of this column.

Although the right foundation garment can do wonders, there's only one way to permanently reclaim a totally lost waistline — through exercise. It's not as difficult as you may think! Just try this:

Kneel, placing your legs wide apart with your back erect as a ramrod. Clasp your hands behind your head. From the waist, twist to your left and bend as far as possible to the right at the same time. Alternating sides, repeat twenty-five times daily.

You'll feel better—and double the figure-refinements the best-chosen foundation can provide!

"FIGURED FOR YOU"

Specially prepared by figure and fashion experts EXCLUSIVELY for readers of this column. FIGURED FOR YOU, gives detailed instructions and illustrates how to select foundation garments that provide comeliness, control and healthful comfort for your individual type of figure. Eisenhower 'Take Home' Pay Is $10,000 Less Than Was Ex-President Truman's

President Eisenhower

Ex-President Truman

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON— President Eisenhower is a victim of the Republican economy drive! He is feeling the pinch where it hurts the most, in his pocketbook.

It will come as a shock to the millions of Republicans, and Democrats, who voted for him to learn that the President is being paid less than his predecessor in office, Harry S. Truman. The difference? About $10,000 a year, or $40,000 during his term of office.

Ostensibly, Mr. Eisenhower receives the same remuneration Mr. Truman received -$150,000 a year. This consists of $100,000 in salary and $50,000 in expense allowance.

However, a Republican-sponsored proviso, offered by Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, requires the President to pay a tax on his $50,000 expense allowance as well as his salary. Ex-President Truman had a tax-free expense allowance.

The Williams proviso was adopted by the 82nd Congress. When the Republicans came into control last Jan. 3, Mr. Truman, still President, urged Congress not to cut the incoming President's remuneration, but the economy-minded members wouldn't budge.

Consequently, President Eisenhower's take-home pay is $9,999.84 less each year than Mr. Truman received.

While the President's remuneration is $150,000 a year, his take-home pay is actually considerably less. It amounts to $120,266 a year.

Here is the breakdown on the President's pay: Out of his $100,000 salary, Mr. Eisenhower receives $80,266 (plus a few odd cents). His withholding tax is $19,733.64. Out of his $50,000 expense allowance, the chief executive receives $40,000.16. The tax deduction is $9,999.84. Of the $150,000 he receives, $29,733.48 is withheld annually in taxes.

Mr. Eisenhower also purchases a Defense bond each month through a payroll deduction, the first President to do so.

Paying the President is quite a ritual. The President is paid monthly, on the last day unless it falls on a weekend, in which event he is paid earlier.

He receives two paychecks. Actually, he never sees them as they are deposited to his account in his bank. His gross monthly salary check is $8,333.33. The take-home pay on this, after taxes are withheld, is $6,688.86. His gross monthly expense check is $4,166.66, which gives him a net $3,333.34.

Approximately one week before the end of the month, Mrs. M. S. Refert, an employe in the General Accounting Office's claims division, starts the ball rolling on the President's pay. She draws up two "settlement vouchers" for Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The vouchers, one for salary and the other for expenses, are then transmitted by Paul Sours, her superior, to the review section of the claims division. There they are countersigned by an attorney, who checks them for accuracy.

The vouchers then go to Mrs. F. W. Bellamy, chief of the GAO's certificate section. Mrs. Bellamy makes out two certificates authorizing the Treasury to draw up the necessary checks for the President.

Mrs. Bellamy signs the certificates and they then go by special messenger to Robert E. Smith, budget officer of the Bureau of Accounts in the Treasury department.

Smith thereupon draws up two vouchers for payment. It is also his task to make sure funds are allocated for payment of the salary, expense allowance, withholding taxes, and the Defense bond.

The vouchers prepared by Smith are then sent to Patrick J. Larkin, a disbursing officer in the Treasury department's Bureau of Disbursements.

Larkin has two checks drawn up. They are the same type of cardboard checks received by all government employes and bear the facsimile signature of Paul D. Banning, chief of the Treasury department's Bureau of Disbursements.

The only difference is that Larkin types in the President's name. Otherwise, they are identical, except for the amounts.

On the morning of the final day of the month (or a few days earlier if the last day falls on a weekend), Larkin hands his assistant, Edward R. Conner, an envelope. It contains the President's two checks.

Conner delivers the envelope to Lt. Col. Robert L. Schulz, a presidential military aide, who gives Conner a receipt. Schulz then has the checks deposited to the President's bank account.

Interestingly enough, the presidential pay for Jan. 20, Inauguration Day, was split equally between Mr. Truman and Mr. Eisenhower.

Couple Who Lost Savings Due To Defective Traffic Light Victims Of Unusual Legal Quirk

BALTIMORE, June 10 (AP) — A Baltimore couple who lost their life savings because of a defective traffic light believe they are the victims of one of the most unusual legal quirks which ever cropped up in a Maryland court.

More than two years ago, a trailer truck plunged into the East Baltimore home and plumbing supplies shop of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nexbed.

They've used up nearly all of the money they had saved through the years to pay doctor bills and for extensive repairs to their building.

But legal technicalities have prevented them from collecting any damages in court.

The accident which left the Nezbeds in their strange plight occurred early in the morning of March 17, 1951.

A trailer truck collided with an automobile at the intersection near their home. The truck careened 54 feet into the curb, knocked down a light pole and plunged 10 feet into the Nezbeds' home, setting it afire and injuring both of them.

It took a lot of money to pay doctor bills and fix the building, but the East Baltimore couple knew they'd have their day in court.

Last April, a jury awarded them $21,000 in damages against the Hickory Transfer Co. and Lloyd D. Shank, owner and driver of the truck.

However, the Maryland Court of Appeals recently reversed the lower court and found in favor of the truckers.

Testimony brought out that the driver of the automobile had a green light as he entered the intersection southbound on Milton Avenue. And the truck driver, proceeding east on Orleans Street, had no light. The signal facing him was inoperative, although westbound traffic on Orleans Street had a red light at the time.

The court felt compelled to sustain the trucker's contention that since the light was dark he was justified in assuming the entire signal system for the intersection was inoperative and that, since he was on a boulevard, he had the right of way.

The court further ruled their was not sufficient evidence to show that the truck was speeding.

With both drivers absolved of blame, the Nezbeds had left only the city of Baltimore to run to make up their loss.

But one of the lawyers for the couple, George Werner, had to point out that the city cannot be sued in cases involving "governmental functions."

Although just what constitutes "governmental functions" is not clear, Werner says, traffic regulations apparently fit into that classification.

Werner says he plans to circulate petitions demanding "redress" from the city, and another of the Nezbed lawyers, Harry Allers, has asked for an audience with city officials to try to work out some form of compensation, even though the city may not be liable.

The Nezbeds say they don't understand the legal intricacies, but they feel that somewhere along the line there has been a miscarriage of justice.

"I'm 70-years-old," said Mr. Nezbed. "If this had happened 30 or 40 years ago, I could stand it."

Mrs. Nezbed replies simply, "Don't complain. It's not going to help us a bit."

They aren't back in business yet, even though sympathetic wholesalers have offered them all of the stock they need on credit.

But Louis Nezbed has a feeling about that sort of operation.

"I don't like to open up with someone else's money," he said.

Four Area Men Join Armed Forces

Four area men were enlisted in the armed forces last week according to M/Sgt. R. W. Stewart, local recruiter.

Enlisting in the U. S. Army for three years were Charles L. Shreves, 16 Weber Street; William R. Connor, RFD 2, this city, and Robert W. VanFleet, Petersburg, W. Va. All three were sent to Fort George G. Meade for processing.

Joining the U. S. Air Force for four years was William J. Warnick Jr., Vale Summit. He was dispatched to Sampson Air Force Base, Geneva, N. Y., for basic training.

Joke On Police Backfires, Driver Counts Pennies

A 22-year-old Frostburg motorist who thought "I'd be smart," saw his joke on local authorities backfire and found himself facing a jail term while counting 645 pennies he posted as bond on a motor violation.

When Magistrate J. Milton Dick looked over his schedule of hearings in Police Court Saturday, he refused to accept a paper bag filled with pennies as bond on an improper passing charge and issued a warrant for the Frostburg youth.

In Trial Magistrate Court later, the driver admitted he was only being "smart" by posting the $6.45 bond in pennies which he intended to forfeit. Dick informed the youth that if he didn't find some coin wrappers, package the pennies and turn them over to the court in a proper manner, he would find himself looking through cell bars.

The youth returned later, began counting the coins and putting them in wrappers, but in the process he acquired a companion to assist him in the task. Dick discovering the dual counting informed the companion that unless he wanted some jail hospitality he had better let his friend do the counting.

Magistrate Dick later told the violator the incident should teach him respect for courts of law and their officials.

"The law officer wasn't discourteous in giving him the ticket; he should not be discourteous in paying the penalty," Magistrate Dick said.

Russia Expected To Make More Minor Concessions

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 16 (AP) — The Communist-dominated World Peace Council, often regarded as a mouthpiece of the Kremlin, indicated yesterday Moscow may make more secondary conmay make more secondary concessions around the world in order to promote a Big Four meeting.

But it made it clear that no major Russian concessions are in the offing unless the West pays a price when and if the Big Four meet after the Bermuda conference. That conference, to be attended by heads of the U. .S British and French governments, may come late this month.

The council of 300 pro-Communists from 65 countries reflects and frequently forecasts Moscow's policies in the peace offensive.

It attempted to give additional significance to week-long sessions which opened in the Hungarian American, British and French journalists to cross the Iron Curtain to attend.

In its first plenary session, the council heard a keynote speech by Emanuel d'Astier de la Vigerie, a Progressive deputy of the French Assembly.

D'Astier recounted all the recent steps taken by Russia and the West to lessen the cold war.

He declared, "The agreements already made foreshadow a settlement here, a limited agreement there."

But he indicated that major agreements outside of Korea would have to wait until a Big Four meeting. He added that "the three powers at Bermuda must not make a Big Four meeting fail by imposing preconditions."

D'Astier said recent Russian concessions in Germany and Austria "must lead to treaties" for those two countries.

He indicated the likely price when he said world peace could not be achieved unless Communist China were admitted to the United Nations, unless the Atlantic Pact nations discontinued rearmament and Germany were reunited.

Argument Is Ended With Alleged Assault

A dispute over property lines between two Bedford Road men Monday night resulted in an altercation with one man winding up in the hospital and the other being charged with assault.

John H. Johnson, 63, posted $500 bond in Trial Magistrates' Court yesterday for a hearing later. He allegedly assaulted William E. Lawyer, 41, after an argument early Monday night.

According to police officers, Johnson was mowing near the property line and Lawyer allegedly accused him of cutting off a turkey's leg with the machine. The argument which ensued ended up in the assault.

Lawyer is a patient in Memorial Hospital with head injuries, police said.

Couple Who Lost Savings Due To Defective Traffic Light Victims Of Unusual Legal Quirk

BALTIMORE, June 10 (AP) — A Baltimore couple who lost their life savings because of a defective traffic light believe they are the victims of one of the most unusual legal quirks which ever cropped up in a Maryland court.

More than two years ago, a trailer truck plunged into the East Baltimore home and plumbing supplies shop of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nexbed.

They've used up nearly all of the money they had saved through the years to pay doctor bills and for extensive repairs to their building.

But legal technicalities have prevented them from collecting any damages in court.

The accident which left the Nezbeds in their strange plight occurred early in the morning of March 17, 1951.

A trailer truck collided with an automobile at the intersection near their home. The truck careened 54 feet into the curb, knocked down a light pole and plunged 10 feet into the Nezbeds' home, setting it afire and injuring both of them.

It took a lot of money to pay doctor bills and fix the building, but the East Baltimore couple knew they'd have their day in court.

Last April, a jury awarded them $21,000 in damages against the Hickory Transfer Co. and Lloyd D. Shank, owner and driver of the truck.

However, the Maryland Court of Appeals recently reversed the lower court and found in favor of the truckers.

Testimony brought out that the driver of the automobile had a green light as he entered the intersection southbound on Milton Avenue. And the truck driver, proceeding east on Orleans Street, had no light. The signal facing him was inoperative, although westbound traffic on Orleans Street had a red light at the time.

The court felt compelled to sustain the trucker's contention that since the light was dark he was justified in assuming the entire signal system for the intersection was inoperative and that, since he was on a boulevard, he had the right of way.

The court further ruled their was not sufficient evidence to show that the truck was speeding.

With both drivers absolved of blame, the Nezbeds had left only the city of Baltimore to run to make up their loss.

But one of the lawyers for the couple, George Werner, had to point out that the city cannot be sued in cases involving "governmental functions."

Although just what constitutes "governmental functions" is not clear, Werner says, traffic regulations apparently fit into that classification.

Werner says he plans to circulate petitions demanding "redress" from the city, and another of the Nezbed lawyers, Harry Allers, has asked for an audience with city officials to try to work out some form of compensation, even though the city may not be liable.

Mrs. Nezbed replies simply, "Don't complain. It's not going to help us a bit."

They aren't back in business yet, even though sympathetic wholesalers have offered them all of the stock they need on credit.

But Louis Nezbed has a feeling about that sort of operation.

"I don't like to open up with someone else's money," he said.

Benjamin Bannecker Homes To Open Next Week

The contractor on Benjamin Bannecker Homes, the Frederick Street low rent dwelling structure for Negro families, will turn the building over to the Cumberland Housing Authority next Tuesday.

James B. Raines, executive director of the authority, said the contractor, the John I. Vandergrift Company, has completed work on the three-story brick structure on schedule.

A ceremony will be held next Tuesday at Bennecker Homes, Raines reported.

For 30 Families

The cost of building the structure that will house 30 families was $265,000.

In it are six one-bedroom apartments; 12 two-bedroom apartments; nine, three-bedroom apartments and three four-bedroom apartments.

The day after the housing authority takes over the building, families will start to move in, Raines said.

All of the dwelling units have been assigned, he reported. The total number of persons in families applying for housing was 136, Raines added.

Each apartment is furnished with a gas stove and electric refrigerator.

The Westinghouse Electric Company, Baltimore, through its local distributor, was low bidder on the contract to furnish and install the 30 refrigerators at a cost of $3,832.26. The only other bidder was the W. S. Hood Company with a figure of $4,386.

Bids Received

One bedroom apartments have six-cubic foot refrigerators while all others have eight-cubic foot boxes.

The Wel-Built Stove Company of Maspeth, Long Island, N. Y., was the successful bidder for furnishing and installing gas stoves. The Long Island firm bid $1,735.50 while the only other bidder, the Bidders' Consumer Distributing Company submitted a $1,809.12 figure.

Bids were opened here Monday for fire, extended coverage and public liability insurance for the homes.

Raines said the bids were sent to the Washington office of the Public Housing Administration for review.

Delivery Of Water Tank Set

The LaVale Sanitary Commission's second big project in the suburb, new mains in its west end, will be completed this fall.

The commission has been informed that delivery of steel plates for a 250,000-gallon water tank just west of Allegany Grove will be held up until September.

The contractor, the George F. Hazelwood Company, has completed the installation of new mains along Route 40 from Footer's Plant to west of Allegany Grove.

The base of the tank, the second of its kind in the suburb's new water system, has been built for some time, the contractor reports.

After the tank is in use, the western part of the suburb will enjoy reduced fire insurance benefits with the section east of Footer's plant, a commission spokesman said.

For the time being, the western half of LaVale is using the system purchased by the commission from the LaVale Water Company. This supply comes from reservoirs in the Red Hill section.

Therefore, the eastern half has city water while the western half has the Red Hill water, explaining the installation of two fire hydrants just across the street from each other near Footer's at the dividing line.

Through health regulations, the waters of two systems cannot be mixed. The hydrants have been placed to connect the two systems in case of failure of either one, a spokesman explained.

The commission has received several inquiries as to the reason the hydrants were placed so close.

William A. Jordan, Hyndman, is a chargehand. He is married and the father of a son.

His sister, Margaret, is also a 25-year Amcelle employee.

John Bestwick, superintendent of spinning, awarded both employes 5-star emblems and certificates.

Beer Permit Being Protested

A remonstrance was filed with the Board of License Commissioners for Allegany County yesterday against the issuance of a beer permit to an establishment in Frostburg.

Victor Arnone has asked for a license for premises at 2 Fairview Street.

Opponents of the move include a score of residents of the neighborhood and also a minister. Their opposition is based on the fact that the Arnone property is situated on a steep grade and in the middle of an S curve.

They also cite that there is no place where cars could park out of the line of traffic, the premises are within 125 yards of four other licensed establishments and is also near the site of a new addition to Miners Hospital.

Individual letters were written by the minister and several others which outline their objections to the license. A report of a board inspector is also listed with the papers in the case.

The board will hear the remonstrance July 7 at 10 a. m.

A Class D beer license was granted Charles T. Johnson for premises at 9 Union Street in Lonaconing. Gustav Clingerman was given a Class D beer license for premises at 125 West Oldtown Road.

Calvin Landis, operator of a Class D beer establishment at McCoole, was warned by the board to discontinue allowing teen-agers to loiter in his place of business. In the event the warning is not heeded the license will be lifted, the board said.

Benjamin Bannecker Homes To Open Next Week

The contractor on Benjamin Bannecker Homes, the Frederick Street low rent dwelling structure for Negro families, will turn the building over to the Cumberland Housing Authority next Tuesday.

James B. Raines, executive director of the authority, said the contractor, the John I. Vandergrift Company, has completed work on the three-story brick structure on schedule.

A ceremony will be held next Tuesday at Bennecker Homes, Raines reported.

For 30 Families

The cost of building the structure that will house 30 families was $265,000.

In it are six one-bedroom apartments; 12 two-bedroom apartments; nine, three-bedroom apartments and three four-bedroom apartments.

The day after the housing authority takes over the building, families will start to move in, Raines said.

All of the dwelling units have been assigned, he reported. The total number of persons in families applying for housing was 136, Raines added.

Each apartment is furnished with a gas stove and electric refrigerator.

The Westinghouse Electric Company, Baltimore, through its local distributor, was low bidder on the contract to furnish and install the 30 refrigerators at a cost of $3,832.26. The only other bidder was the W. S. Hood Company with a figure of $4,386.

Bids Received

One bedroom apartments have six-cubic foot refrigerators while all others have eight-cubic foot boxes.

The Wel-Built Stove Company of Maspeth, Long Island, N. Y., was the successful bidder for furnishing and installing gas stoves. The Long Island firm bid $1,735.50 while the only other bidder, the Bidders' Consumer Distributing Company submitted a $1,809.12 figure.

Bids were opened here Monday for fire, extended coverage and public liability insurance for the homes.

Raines said the bids were sent to the Washington office of the Public Housing Administration for review.

Delivery Of Water Tank Set

The LaVale Sanitary Commission's second big project in the suburb, new mains in its west end, will be completed this fall.

The commission has been informed that delivery of steel plates for a 250,000-gallon water tank just west of Allegany Grove will be held up until September.

The contractor, the George F. Hazelwood Company, has completed the installation of new mains along Route 40 from Footer's Plant to west of Allegany Grove.

The base of the tank, the second of its kind in the suburb's new water system, has been built for some time, the contractor reports.

After the tank is in use, the western part of the suburb will enjoy reduced fire insurance benefits with the section east of Footer's plant, a commission spokesman said.

For the time being, the western half of LaVale is using the system purchased by the commission from the LaVale Water Company. This supply comes from reservoirs in the Red Hill section.

Therefore, the eastern half has city water while the western half has the Red Hill water, explaining the installation of two fire hydrants just across the street from each other near Footer's at the dividing line.

Through health regulations, the waters of two systems cannot be mixed. The hydrants have been placed to connect the two systems in case of failure of either one, a spokesman explained.

The commission has received several inquiries as to the reason the hydrants were placed so close.

Two probationary appointments to the Cumberland Police force were approved by the Mayor and City Council at its regular session Monday in City Hall.

Both Bohn and Shank are certified by the Civil Service Commission. The appointments were approved unanimously.

Long Praises City's Fire Department

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, in a letter to Assistant Chief Robert Long, yesterday praised the Cumberland Fire Department for its completion of the advanced fire fighting training course presented by the University of Maryland.

Chief Long was instructor for the course and every member of the local fire department passed the training sessions.

Commissioner Long then announced he would attend the Maryland Police Association's three-day meeting next week in Ocean City. He added he would miss next Monday's council meeting because of the trip.

Youth Hospitalized From Injury In Fall

Richard Lynch Jr., six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lynch, 323 Columbia Street, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital about 5:30 p. m. Monday after being injured while playing in the backyard of his home.

Hospital attaches said the youth suffered a fractured left elbow when he fell from the back steps of the residence. He was discharged yesterday.

Beer Permit Being Protested

A remonstrance was filed with the Board of License Commissioners for Allegany County yesterday against the issuance of a beer permit to an establishment in Frostburg.

Victor Arnone has asked for a license for premises at 2 Fairview Street.

Opponents of the move include a score of residents of the neighborhood and also a minister. Their opposition is based on the fact that the Arnone property is situated on a steep grade and in the middle of an S curve.

They also cite that there is no place where cars could park out of the line of traffic, the premises are within 125 yards of four other licensed establishments and is also near the site of a new addition to Miners Hospital.

Individual letters were written by the minister and several others which outline their objections to the license. A report of a board inspector is also listed with the papers in the case.

The board will hear the remonstrance July 7 at 10 a. m.

A Class D beer license was granted Charles T. Johnson for premises at 9 Union Street in Lonaconing. Gustav Clingerman was given a Class D beer license for premises at 125 West Oldtown Road.

Calvin Landis, operator of a Class D beer establishment at McCoole, was warned by the board to discontinue allowing teen-agers to loiter in his place of business. In the event the warning is not heeded the license will be lifted, the board said.

The U.S. Treasury Department states the facts about

U.S. TREASURY DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON 25

May 22, 1953

Mr. Clinton M. Hester,
Washington Counsel,
United States Brewers Foundation,
Shoreham Building,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Hester:

The recent trend toward advertising malt beverages on the basis of the sugar or starch content in each bottle has resulted in numerous complaints from the brewing industry and general public. As a result of such complaints, advertisements of this nature have been surveyed and samples of beer produced by a representative number of large, medium and small brewers have been analyzed.

The complaints and interviews have shown that advertisements of this nature lead the majority of readers and viewers over television and radio to believe that the advertised product has less sugar or starch than other malt beverages and, therefore, would be less fattening.

Analyses of the beer samples have shown that the sugar content varied so little, amounting in no instance to more than a negligible trace, as to have no appreciable effect on the caloric content. It is the opinion of the Bureau laboratory that starch is not normally present in beer. The impression created by these advertisements, therefore, that the amount of sugar or starch contained in the beer would appreciably affect the caloric content or its sweetness of taste, is misleading within the meaning of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act and advertising regulations.

It would be appreciated if you would inform the members of your association of the Bureau's opinion that any reference to sugar or starch content in advertisements of malt beverages is misleading and, therefore, violates the provisions of Section 54 (A) (1) of Regulation No. 7; and that any similar references on labels violate the provisions of Section 29 (A) (1) of Regulation No. 7.

A similar letter is being directed to Mr. John E. O'Neill, general counsel, Brewers Association of America, Suite 604, Washington Building, Washington, D.C.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Dwight E. Avis,
Head, Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division

These are the facts. Do not be misled by exaggerated claims

1. This means —

Samples of beer produced by a representative number of large, small, and medium breweries have been analyzed by the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax division, U. S. Treasury Department.

2. This means —

These analyses showed that the amount of sugar in practically all beers varied so little, amounting in no instance to more than a negligible trace, and therefore has no appreciable effect either from a fattening or taste standpoint.

3. This means —

Any reference to the sugar content in beer advertising is misleading.

Mr. Frostburg Wins Fairgo Sixth On Western Maryland Day

Sorrentino Is Triple Winner, For 2nd Time

Outsiders Have Field Day; Connie Rose Pays $25.20; Betting Off

Western Maryland Day was fittingly observed yesterday at the Cumberland Fair Grounds when Mr. Frostburg, a six-year-old gelding, owned by Enoch P. Price and trained by his son, Enoch W. "Junior" Price, of Frostburg, scored a two lengths win over Make Sway, the favorite, in the sixth race on the third day of the 10-day session of the Cumberland Fair Association.

Mike Sorrentino, the meet's leading rider, had a leg up on the Time Passes gelding, which returned $7.60, $3.40 and $2.60 to $2 win, place and show bettors.

Mr. Frostburg negotiated the five furlongs in 55 3/5 seconds to register his third straight win. The ace of the Price Stable had won two races at Wheeling before coming here. My Pastime finished third in yesterday's sprint.

Only Two Favorites Win

For the second time in three days favorites took a beating at the local half miler when only two of the public choices registered. The percentage of favorites winning here plummeted to 29 per cent as only seven have come through in 24 races.

The best price of the day was posted in the opening race when Connie Rose, Eugene Dosher up, whipped Empire Valley by a length and returned $25.20 for $2. Battle Royal, the favorite, took third money.

Dosher came right back with another winner in the second when he booted home John Red's Ripple By ahead of Lady Poet and Germinate to account for the daily double payoff of $91 on the 2-2 combination. The double pool of $16,992 was the smallest of the meeting. Ripple By, incidentally, rewarded bettors with $14 for each two bucks invested.

Epic Chance, of the Elsmar Stable, piloted by Mike Sorrentino, raced home ahead of Royal Jacopo and Fireagain to take the major share of the $1,000 purse and rewarded the faithful with a return of $19.80.

Hell's Flame Pays $16.60

The third best return of the afternoon was recorded in the 7th race in which Mrs. C. V. Pugh's Hell's Flame scorched the local track to whip Belmont Belle, the favorite, and Smart Start over 6½ furlongs. The payoff in this number was $16.60 made possible by a nifty ride given the Airflame gelding by Fred Young.

Danny Scocca, who was aboard Many Gifts, winner of the White Purse, Saturday's feature, was also in the pilot house on Mrs. R. E. Benton's Mistambo which romped home ahead of Bandaid, the public choice, and Bless Me Too in yesterday's fourth. The $2 win ticket holders collected $11.20 on Mistambo's successful outing.

Only favorites to win before the crowd of 4,300 were Jer-Ada ($6.80) in the third and War Egret ($3.80) in the fifth.

Sorrentino Is Red Hot

Mike Sorrentino brought home three winners for the second straight day to up his point total to 41, a lead of 16 points over Fred Young, his closest competitor. The New Yorker scored with War Egret, Mr. Frostburg and Epic Chance. The trainers' race remained unchanged with L. A. Hancock retaining the leadership with 13 tallies. Eight different trainers saddled winners on yesterday's program.

The mutuel handle for the eight races, including the daily double, was $158,249, the smallest of the meeting. It was the poorest betting day here since the fourth day of the 1950 session when $156,541 was wagered. The three-day total this year is $543,005.

WINNER—Owned by John Red, trained by owner.

Ripple By, well handled from the break, came through on the inside while engaging Lady Poet in a strong duel throughout and held that one safe the last strides. Lady Poet quickly established a clear lead, bore out some in the stretch turn and could not withstand the winner. Germinate improved position early, was taken up slightly while in tight quarters, then came on again in the final stages. Veteran could not challenge the leaders when set down. Air Good had brief early foot but could not keep up.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. J. S. Murphy, trained by J. S. Murphy.

Jer-Ada broke with Zany to be prominent throughout, took command when asked and was going away at the end. Leachie, settled into best stride in the backstretch, came around horses in the final turn and closed resolutely. Zany, on top from the break, gave way when put to the final pressure. Ernen turned in an even performance. Immortality trailed. Abuse bore out all the way.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. R. E. Benton, trained by R. E. Benton.

Mistambo, on the inside while with the first flight, took the lead in the early stretch and was fully extended to maintain the advantage. Bandaid went up on the inside down the backstretch, was in very tight quarter midway of the stretch turn, then closed strongly when clear. Bless Me Too was bumped repeatedly nearing the final bend, had no excuse when clear. American Cross, away fastest, could not keep up. Bonesciana quit, as did Frigate.

WINNER—Owned by C. F. Krug, trained by G. Byrne.

War Egret, unhurried while not far off the early pace, took the lead in the early stretch and won as her rider pleased. Plain Joy was sent to the front immediately, could not withstand the pressure but was best of Jacodancer under an energetic ride. Jacodancer lacked racing room while making his move on the inside down the backstretch and might have been closer with more racing luck. The Detainer raced strongly without mishaps. Watch Tower was outrun.

WINNER—Owned by Enoch P. Price, trained by E. W. Price.

Mr. Frostburg improved position steadily to move around horses in the backstretch, took the lead while saving some ground in the early stretch and while not able to draw clear was best of Make Sway under a strong ride. Make Sway, in front under alert handling from the start, bore out badly in the turns and could not stay with the winner. My Pastime raced gamely throughout. Elsie M. turned in an even performance. Others were outrun.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. C. V. Pugh, trained by W. B. Pugh, Jr.

Hells Flame, steadied to midway of the backstretch, rallied when pressed and held Belmont Belle safe the final stride. Belmont Belle took command immediately, opened a long lead nearing the stretch turn but could not withstand the final bid of the winner. Smart Start showed some late foot to close ground. Goodrob was not a serious threat and passed some tired horses. Salient was outrun. Twinkler was finished early.

WINNER—Owned by Elmsmar Stable, trained by J. J. Richardson, Jr.

Epic Chance, under light restraint while apparently outrun early, came through on the inside leaving the stretch turn and nipped Royal Jacopo at the wire. The latter forged up between horses into the backstretch, took the lead briefly between calls in the early stretch and just missed. Fireagain, in closest pursuit of Poker Club early, went up on the inside of that one in the backstretch, bore out in the stretch turn and had little left when called on. Gunmaker, with the top flight leaving the half mile grounds, tired. Porzo raced evenly. Busy Day was outrun. Poker Club quit and appeared a bit sore after being unsaddled.

Fairgo Briefs

By C. V. BURNS

TODAY is Dapper Dan Day at Fairgo and the featured event will be the 7th, the Dapper Dan Club Purse, a five furlongs dash for three-year-olds.

The Cumberland Dapper Dan Club will present a defense bond to the owner of the winning horse in the featured event.

Among the visitors expected here for the fourth day's program is Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and national president of the Dapper Dans.

RACING officials here are sorry to learn of the illness of two of their co-workers.

Henry Erickson, one-time outstanding jockey, who served many times as official at Fairgo, is a patient in a Delaware hospital. His home is at Laurel, Md.

Eddie Dennison, former Fairgo official, is ill at his home in Baltimore.

YESTERDAY'S visitors to Fairgo included J. Yancy Christmas, prominent owner and trainer of horses who motored here from the Delaware Park track. The Christmas stable thoroughbreds have raced at the local half milers on numerous occasions.

JOHN "Suds" Cavanaugh, prominent sports promoter in the Tri-Towns for many years, was here yesterday to see the races.

"Suds" managed the Piedmont Dry Bugs baseball teams from 1919 to 1930, was announcer of fights in the days the Devon Club staged amateur shows at Luke and was once a theater manager at Piedmont.

Cavanaugh is a native of Pittsburgh where he now resides and does special sales work for a leading chain store.

"Suds" gained prominence in the Tri-Towns when he obtained first films on the Allens of Virginia who shot up the court house at Hillsville about 1912. He toured the east showing this film and made himself quite a bit of jack.

THE Jockey Club in New York has approved the name "Nellie Kelly" for "Bill" Keegan's yearling. That's the maiden name of Mrs. Keegan.

HERE'S a coincidence. When Fidelitas won here Monday More Better romped home the winner at Delaware Park. Both were out of the same mare, Thine Alone. C. E. Tuttle, father-in-law of J. Fred Colwill, racing secretary at Fairgo, bred Fidelitas, and is the owner of More Better.

WINNERS of 1952 that have repeated thus far at the local meeting are Fidelitas, Sea-O-Dee, Jimmy Gibbons, Occupola, Mr. Frostburg and Mistambo.

Occupola must like Fairgo because he also won here in 1951.

Pawnee Boy's $107 payoff in 1950 is the highest recorded on a $2 win ticket here in recent years.

A RECENT nationwide survey revealed that 45,880,617 persons paid to see the races in 1952.

Year in and year out there are more spectators at horse races than any other sport.

PRICE'S ACE SCORES AT FAIRGO—Enoch P. Price's Mr. Frostburg, a six-year-old gelding, registered his third straight victory by defeating Make Sway, the favorite, by two lengths in the 6th race yesterday at Fairgo. Mike Sorrentino is shown aboard the Frostburg-owned horse after it had won the $700 purse and increased its earnings to $2,225 this year. Mr. Frostburg last year had a 7-2-5 record in 19 starts and earned $5,850. This year the son of Time Passes has a 3-1-0 record and won two in a row at the recent Wheeling meeting. Owner Price, left, is shown with his son and grandson. His son E. W. (Junior) trains the Price thoroughbreds.

LEAVES LaSALLE — Brother S. Joseph, above, director of athletics at LaSalle High School since September 1950 has been transferred to Catholic Central High School, Pittsburgh, and will join the faculty there in the fall. He came here three years ago to succeed Brother Gregory Mutien, who was transferred to New Jersey. Brother Joseph made many friends during his stay in Allegany county and they're wishing him success in his new position. In addition to his teaching and athletic duties at the local school, Bro. Joseph was recognized as one of the county's leading bridge players. His successor as director of athletics will be Brother G. Thomas, who comes here from Central of Pittsburgh.

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Ex-Yankee right-hander Duane Pillette, with the help of fine relief hurling by Satchel Paige, foiled New York in its attempt to equal the American League consecutive game winning record tonight, pitching the lowly St. Louis Browns to a 3-1 triumph that snapped the world champions' winning streak at 18.

Vic Wertz supplied the winning blow, crashing a two-run homer in the fifth to end the Browns' 14-game losing skein and hand Whitey Ford his first defeat of the season. Despite the defeat, the Yankees retained their 10½ game lead over Cleveland's Indians who lost to Philadelphia, 9-7.

Mr. Frostburg Wins Fairgo Sixth On Western Maryland Day

Outsiders Have Field Day; Connie Rose Pays $25.20; Betting Off

Western Maryland Day was fittingly observed yesterday at the Cumberland Fair Grounds when Mr. Frostburg, a six-year-old gelding, owned by Enoch P. Price and trained by his son, Enoch W. "Junior" Price, of Frostburg, scored a two lengths win over Make Sway, the favorite, in the sixth race on the third day of the 10-day session of the Cumberland Fair Association.

Mike Sorrentino, the meet's leading rider, had a leg up on the Time Passes gelding, which returned $7.60, $3.40 and $2.60 to $2 win, place and show bettors.

Mr. Frostburg negotiated the five furlongs in 55 3/5 seconds to register his third straight win. The ace of the Price Stable had won two races at Wheeling before coming here. My Pastime finished third in yesterday's sprint.

Only Two Favorites Win

For the second time in three days favorites took a beating at the local half miler when only two of the public choices registered. The percentage of favorites winning here plummeted to 29 per cent as only seven have come through in 24 races.

The best price of the day was posted in the opening race when Connie Rose, Eugene Dosher up, whipped Empire Valley by a length and returned $25.20 for $2. Battle Royal, the favorite, took third money.

Dosher came right back with another winner in the second when he booted home John Red's Ripple By ahead of Lady Poet and Germinate to account for the daily double payoff of $91 on the 2-2 combination. The double pool of $16,992 was the smallest of the meeting. Ripple By, incidentally, rewarded bettors with $14 for each two bucks invested.

Epic Chance, of the Elsmar Stable, piloted by Mike Sorrentino, raced home ahead of Royal Jacopo and Fireagain to take the major share of the $1,000 purse and rewarded the faithful with a return of $19.80.

Hell's Flame Pays $16.60

The third best return of the afternoon was recorded in the 7th race in which Mrs. C. V. Pugh's Hell's Flame scorched the local track to whip Belmont Belle, the favorite, and Smart Start over 6½ furlongs. The payoff in this number was $16.60 made possible by a nifty ride given the Airflame gelding by Fred Young.

Danny Scocca, who was aboard Many Gifts, winner of the White Purse, Saturday's feature, was also in the pilot house on Mrs. R. E. Benton's Mistambo which romped home ahead of Bandaid, the public choice, and Bless Me Too in yesterday's fourth. The $2 win ticket holders collected $11.20 on Mistambo's successful outing.

Only favorites to win before the crowd of 4,300 were Jer-Ada ($6.80) in the third and War Egret ($3.80) in the fifth.

Sorrentino Is Red Hot

Mike Sorrentino brought home three winners for the second straight day to up his point total to 41, a lead of 16 points over Fred Young, his closest competitor. The New Yorker scored with War Egret, Mr. Frostburg and Epic Chance. The trainers' race remained unchanged with L. A. Hancock retaining the leadership with 13 tallies. Eight different trainers saddled winners on yesterday's program.

The mutuel handle for the eight races, including the daily double, was $158,249, the smallest of the meeting. It was the poorest betting day here since the fourth day of the 1950 session when $156,541 was wagered. The three-day total this year is $543,005.

Giants Cop Opener

CINCINNATI, June 16 (INS) — The New York Giants pounded four Cincinnati pitchers for 10 hits and a 7 to 5 victory tonight in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader at Cincinnati.

New York scored single runs in the first three innings, then put over a four-run splurge in the fourth including a homer by Catcher Wes Westrum. Box:

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. C. Phillips, trained by G. H. Pearce.

Connie Rose, alertly handled while in good racing position to move through on the inside, established a clear lead in the early stretch and withstood the final bid of Empire Valley under increased pressure. Empire Valley, in tight quarters in the first turn, came between horses in the drive and closed best of the others. Battle Royal flashed early foot, then could not stay when called on. Blossom Bel, sluggish early, closed in a belated rush. Gay Beauty was bumped in the first turn, showed nothing thereafter.

WINNER—Owned by John Red, trained by owner.

Ripple By, well handled from the break, came through on the inside while engaging Lady Poet in a strong duel throughout and held that one safe the last strides. Lady Poet quickly established a clear lead, bore out some in the stretch turn and could not withstand the winner. Germinate improved position early, was taken up slightly while in tight quarters, then came on again in the final stages. Veteran could not challenge the leaders when set down. Air Good had brief early foot but could not keep up.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. J. S. Murphy, trained by J. S. Murphy.

Jer-Ada broke with Zany to be prominent throughout, took command when asked and was going away at the end. Leachie, settled into best stride in the backstretch, came around horses in the final turn and closed resolutely. Zany, on top from the break, gave way when put to the final pressure. Ernen turned in an even performance. Immortality trailed. Abuse bore out all the way.

FOURTH RACE—6½ Furlongs. PURSE—$1,000—700-150-100-50. CONDITIONS—3 year olds and up. CLAIMING PRICE—Scale. HANDLE—$19,327.

MUTUEL PRICES—1. Mistambo $11.20, $4.60, $3.60; 2. Bandaid $3.40, $2.60; 3. Bless Me Too $3.00.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. R. E. Benton, trained by R. E. Benton.

Mistambo, on the inside while with the first flight, took the lead in the early stretch and was fully extended to maintain the advantage. Bandaid went up on the inside down the backstretch, was in very tight quarter midway of the stretch turn, then closed strongly when clear. Bless Me Too was bumped repeatedly nearing the final bend, had no excuse when clear. American Cross, away fastest, could not keep up. Bonesciana quit, as did Frigate.

FIFTH RACE—6½ Furlongs. PURSE—$1,000—700-150-100-50. CONDITIONS—3 year olds, allowances. HANDLE—$18,715.

MUTUEL PRICES—1. War Egret $3.80, $3.40, $2.60; 2. Plain Joy $6.80, $4.60; 3. Jacodancer $3.20.

WINNER—Owned by C. F. Krug, trained by G. Byrne.

War Egret, unhurried while not far off the early pace, took the lead in the early stretch and won as her rider pleased. Plain Joy was sent to the front immediately, could not withstand the pressure but was best of Jacodancer under an energetic ride. Jacodancer lacked racing room while making his move on the inside down the backstretch and might have been closer with more racing luck. The Detainer raced strongly without mishaps. Watch Tower was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. PURSE—$1,000—700-150-100-50. CONDITIONS—3 year olds and up. CLAIMING PRICE—All $2,000. HANDLE—$21,747.

WINNER—Owned by Enoch P. Price, trained by E. W. Price.

Mr. Frostburg improved position steadily to move around horses in the backstretch, took the lead while saving some ground in the early stretch and while not able to draw clear was best of Make Sway under a strong ride. Make Sway, in front under alert handling from the start, bore out badly in the turns and could not stay with the winner. My Pastime raced gamely throughout. Elsie M. turned in an even performance. Others were outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—6½ Furlongs. PURSE—$1,000—700-150-100-50. CONDITIONS—4 year olds and up. CLAIMING PRICE—All $1,000. HANDLE—$19,685.

WINNER—Owned by Mrs. C. V. Pugh, trained by W. B. Pugh, Jr.

Hells Flame, steadied to midway of the backstretch, rallied when pressed and held Belmont Belle safe the final stride. Belmont Belle took command immediately, opened a long lead nearing the stretch turn but could not withstand the final bid of the winner. Smart Start showed some late foot to close ground. Goodrob was not a serious threat and passed some tired horses. Salient was outrun. Twinkler was finished early.

EIGHTH RACE—1 1/16 Miles. PURSE—$1,000—700-150-100-50. CONDITIONS—4 year olds and up. CLAIMING PRICE—Scale. HANDLE—$22,993.

WINNER—Owned by Elmsmar Stable, trained by J. J. Richardson, Jr.

Epic Chance, under light restraint while apparently outrun early, came through on the inside leaving the stretch turn and nipped Royal Jacopo at the wire. The latter forged up between horses into the backstretch, took the lead briefly between calls in the early stretch and just missed. Fireagain, in closest pursuit of Poker Club early, went up on the inside of that one in the backstretch, bore out in the stretch turn and had little left when called on. Gunmaker, with the top flight leaving the half mile grounds, tired. Porzo raced evenly. Busy Day was outrun. Poker Club quit and appeared a bit sore after being unsaddled.

Fairgo Briefs

By C. V. BURNS

TODAY is Dapper Dan Day at Fairgo and the featured event will be the 7th, the Dapper Dan Club Purse, a five furlongs dash for three-year-olds.

The Cumberland Dapper Dan Club will present a defense bond to the owner of the winning horse in the featured event.

Among the visitors expected here for the fourth day's program is Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and national president of the Dapper Dans.

RACING officials here are sorry to learn of the illness of two of their co-workers.

Henry Erickson, one-time outstanding jockey, who served many times as official at Fairgo, is a patient in a Delaware hospital. His home is at Laurel, Md.

Eddie Dennison, former Fairgo official, is ill at his home in Baltimore.

YESTERDAY'S visitors to Fairgo included J. Yancy Christmas, prominent owner and trainer of horses who motored here from the Delaware Park track. The Christmas stable thoroughbreds have raced at the local half milers on numerous occasions.

JOHN "Suds" Cavanaugh, prominent sports promoter in the Tri-Towns for many years, was here yesterday to see the races.

"Suds" managed the Piedmont Dry Bugs baseball teams from 1919 to 1930, was announcer of fights in the days the Devon Club staged amateur shows at Luke and was once a theater manager at Piedmont.

Cavanaugh is a native of Pittsburgh where he now resides and does special sales work for a leading chain store.

"Suds" gained prominence in the Tri-Towns when he obtained first films on the Allens of Virginia who shot up the court house at Hillsville about 1912. He toured the east showing this film and made himself quite a bit of jack.

THE Jockey Club in New York has approved the name "Nellie Kelly" for "Bill" Keegan's yearling. That's the maiden name of Mrs. Keegan.

HERE'S a coincidence. When Fidelitas won here Monday More Better romped home the winner at Delaware Park. Both were out of the same mare, Thine Alone. C. E. Tuttle, father-in-law of J. Fred Colwill, racing secretary at Fairgo, bred Fidelitas, and is the owner of More Better.

WINNERS of 1952 that have repeated thus far at the local meeting are Fidelitas, Sea-O-Dee, Jimmy Gibbons, Occupola, Mr. Frostburg and Mistambo.

Occupola must like Fairgo because he also won here in 1951.

Pawnee Boy's $107 payoff in 1950 is the highest recorded on a $2 win ticket here in recent years.

A RECENT nationwide survey revealed that 45,880,617 persons paid to see the races in 1952.

Year in and year out there are more spectators at horse races than any other sport.

PRICE'S ACE SCORES AT FAIRGO—Enoch P. Price's Mr. Frostburg, a six-year-old gelding, registered his third straight victory by defeating Make Sway, the favorite, by two lengths in the 6th race yesterday at Fairgo. Mike Sorrentino is shown aboard the Frostburg-owned horse after it had won the $700 purse and increased its earnings to $2,225 this year. Mr. Frostburg last year had a 7-2-5 record in 19 starts and earned $5,850. This year the son of Time Passes has a 3-1-0 record and won two in a row at the recent Wheeling meeting. Owner Price, left, is shown with his son and grandson. His son E. W. (Junior) trains the Price thoroughbreds.

LEAVES LaSALLE — Brother S. Joseph, above, director of athletics at LaSalle High School since September 1950 has been transferred to Catholic Central High School, Pittsburgh, and will join the faculty there in the fall. He came here three years ago to succeed Brother Gregory Mutien, who was transferred to New Jersey. Brother Joseph made many friends during his stay in Allegany county and they're wishing him success in his new position. In addition to his teaching and athletic duties at the local school, Bro. Joseph was recognized as one of the county's leading bridge players. His successor as director of athletics will be Brother G. Thomas, who comes here from Central of Pittsburgh.

Wertz' Homer Snaps String Of 18 Wins

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Ex-Yankee right-hander Duane Pillette, with the help of fine relief hurling by Satchel Paige, foiled New York in its attempt to equal the American League consecutive game winning record tonight, pitching the lowly St. Louis Browns to a 3-1 triumph that snapped the world champions' winning streak at 18.

Vic Wertz supplied the winning blow, crashing a two-run homer in the fifth to end the Browns' 14-game losing skein and hand Whitey Ford his first defeat of the season. Despite the defeat, the Yankees retained their 10½ game lead over Cleveland's Indians who lost to Philadelphia, 9-7.

Philadelphia Phils Sign Bonus Player

PHILADELPHIA, June 16 (INS) —The Philadelphia Phillies today announced the signing of an 18-year-old pitcher as a bonus player for a "sizeable sum."

The right-hander is Thomas Qualters, fresh from McKeesport, Pa., High School where he compiled a record of 27-5 in three seasons, including four no-hitters. This year he logged 11-0.

The Phils outbid eight other major league clubs for the services of the hurler who in 87 innings whiffed 169 batters, nearly two an inning.

The bonus money was at least $25,000 which was paid to sign the team's star righthander Robin Roberts. Qualters will join the team in Cincinnati Friday, and under the new bonus rule must be on the active list for at least two years.

Pollet Defeats Pirates To Give Cubs Even Break

Bucs Win Opener, 6-5, But Lose Second, 3-2

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs dropped a 6-5 decision to Pittsburgh today, then came back for a 3-2 triumph in the second game of a doubleheader as Lefty Howie Pollet beat his former Pirate teammates.

The Pirates had successive three run innings in the opener, voiding Ransom Jackson's three-run homer. Decisive blow in the nightcap was Dee Fondy's fourth-inning home run with Hank Sauer on base.

Pollet allowed five hits in taking the second game, although he needed help from Johnny Klippstein in the ninth inning.

Correspondent Is Through For Year

INGLEWOOD, Calif., June 16 (AP)—Correspondent, once-bright three-year-old hope of California, is through with racing for the year, his trainer says.

The colt, who went to the post second choice in the Kentucky Derby, popped a bone above the hoof in last Saturday's Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park. He finished last in a 10-horse field.

Trainer Wally Dunn said Correspondent will be taken out of training and the joint fired. The horse then will be rested until the Santa Anita meeting next winter.

Pollet Defeats Pirates To Give Cubs Even Break

Bucs Win Opener, 6-5, But Lose Second, 3-2

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs dropped a 6-5 decision to Pittsburgh today, then came back for a 3-2 triumph in the second game of a doubleheader as Lefty Howie Pollet beat his former Pirate teammates.

The Pirates had successive three run innings in the opener, voiding Ransom Jackson's three-run homer. Decisive blow in the nightcap was Dee Fondy's fourth-inning home run with Hank Sauer on base.

Pollet allowed five hits in taking the second game, although he needed help from Johnny Klippstein in the ninth inning.

Correspondent Is Through For Year

INGLEWOOD, Calif., June 16 (AP)—Correspondent, once-bright three-year-old hope of California, is through with racing for the year, his trainer says.

The colt, who went to the post second choice in the Kentucky Derby, popped a bone above the hoof in last Saturday's Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park. He finished last in a 10-horse field.

Trainer Wally Dunn said Correspondent will be taken out of training and the joint fired. The horse then will be rested until the Santa Anita meeting next winter.

Peach And Hay Crops Damaged By Recent Rain

State Farmers Feel Work Is Not Behind

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 16 (AP)—Peaches and hay have suffered most from rains and insects while other farm crops in Maryland thrived on recent wet weather, agricultural agencies reported today.

The peach crop first was hit by frost in April and then by the 17-year locusts. While the frost damage wasn't as bad as first estimated, the Maryland Crop Reporting Service now figures the crop of 422,000 bushels will be 7 per cent smaller than last year.

Cutting Is Underway

Rain damaged a considerable quaintity of hay in the Northern and Eastern sections of the state. Cutting now is under way.

Generally, the service found that while last month's frequent rains interfered with work in the fields, Maryland farmers had gotten in most of their crops and do not feel they are too far behind.

Tobacco setting, for instance, was much farther along than usual.

Here's a summary of the other conditions:

Field crops—Most corn is up and some as high as two feet in the Southern part of the Eastern Shore. Early fields of fall sown oats in the Southern part of the peninsula have been combined. In the north, the oats are green and spring seeded oats are just starting to head. Nearly all the barley is ripe in appearance, but not dry enough to harvest. Rye also is nearly ripe and combining of both crops should be under way soon.

Three-fourths of the soybeans are planted and most fields up to a good stand. Pastures show excellent growth.

Apples Being Picked

Fruit—Thinning of apples has started. Around Salisbury, transparent apples are being picked. Some very early peaches will be picked next week on the lower part of the Eastern Shore.

Vegetables — The asparagus peak is passed. Lima beans are growing well. Snap beans are being harvested in heavy volume. Cantaloupes are starting to vine. Sweet corn is just coming up. Cucumbers are blooming heavier. Potatoes show excellent foliage and harvesting started in a small way on the Eastern Shore. Tomatoes show excellent vines.

The first circus came to the United States in 1792.

Mt. Etna is Europe's tallest volcano.

Parakeet On Lark At Local Park Is Now Home Again

The sightseeing parakeet which left home for a visit through Constitution Park Monday has been returned to its owner.

Robert R. Golden, superintendent of the park, last night said the owner showed up early yesterday morning with a cage and as she called to the parakeet it flew into it.

She was well acquainted with the bird and had it do several tricks for Golden who had received a number of calls on the wandering sightseer. The bird spent most of Monday afternoon and the night at the Golden home and seemed happy to rejoin its owner.

John Bestwick, superintendent of Spinning, awarded both employes the traditional five-star Celanese service emblems and engraved quarter-century certificates.

Oiling Of Streets Gets Underway

The Street Department began its annual street oiling program Monday in the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company section.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner, said under the rotation plan oiling swings to West Side, North End and finally South End.

Meanwhile, the department continues its search for a more economical method of dispensing dust on unpaved streets.

Mrs. Roeder said a two-mile test patch using sodium chloride will be laid out and engineers have assured her the results of the test will be conclusive on the use of the chemical as a solution to the city's problems.

Annual Rural Women's Short Course Opens, 1,000 Present

COLLEGE PARK, June 16 — More than 1,000 Maryland farm wives attended their first classes here today as the annual Rural Women's Short Course got under way on the University of Maryland campus.

Specialists from the school's extension service turned out to impart first hand information on a wide range of homemaking subjects.

University of Maryland faculty members and instructors from business fields also taught courses.

Late this afternoon, the Maryland State Council of Homemakers Clubs met for a business session. Mrs. Carl Feucht Sr., of Elkton, president of the council, presided.

Guest speaker for the afternoon meeting was Mrs. Haven N. Smith, Chappell, Neb., first vice president of the Associated Women, American Farm Bureau.

Mrs. J. Homer Remsburg, Middletown, extended greetings from the National Home Demonstration Council.

Mrs. Smith told the group that the world must replace fear with courage. "The greatest courage is courage of the mind," she said.

Declaring that prejudice "is born of a lack of information," she cited human understanding as "the greatest need in the world."

"We women must hold fast to faith, faith that we can make America what we want it to be," she said.

Two new officers were formally installed at the afternoon session. Mrs. Oscar Carpenter, Plum Point, Calvert County, was installed as vice president, and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Lonaconing, was installed as treasurer.

Poultry Exemption From Tax Upheld

BALTIMORE, June 16 (AP)—Attorney General Edward Rollins yesterday upheld a General Assembly provision permitting exemption from tax assessment poultry up to six months old which is to be sold for eating and not kept for breeding purposes.

A ruling had been asked by Albert W. Ward, secretary of the Tax Commission.

Answering Ward's pointing up of administrative problems involved, Rollins reminded him that the taxing authorities were not required to determine which birds were for eating and which for breeding.

". . . the burden of proving facts entitling one to be exemption from taxation is on the taxpayer himself," Rollins said.

Broiler growers on the Eastern Shore and turkey raisers in Western Maryland were among the leading advocates of the General Assembly exemption measure.

Peach And Hay Crops Damaged By Recent Rain

State Farmers Feel Work Is Not Behind

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 16 (AP)—Peaches and hay have suffered most from rains and insects while other farm crops in Maryland thrived on recent wet weather, agricultural agencies reported today.

The peach crop first was hit by frost in April and then by the 17-year locusts. While the frost damage wasn't as bad as first estimated, the Maryland Crop Reporting Service now figures the crop of 422,000 bushels will be 7 per cent smaller than last year.

Cutting Is Underway

Rain damaged a considerable quaintity of hay in the Northern and Eastern sections of the state. Cutting now is under way.

Generally, the service found that while last month's frequent rains interfered with work in the fields, Maryland farmers had gotten in most of their crops and do not feel they are too far behind.

Tobacco setting, for instance, was much farther along than usual.

Here's a summary of the other conditions:

Field crops—Most corn is up and some as high as two feet in the Southern part of the Eastern Shore. Early fields of fall sown oats in the Southern part of the peninsula have been combined. In the north, the oats are green and spring seeded oats are just starting to head. Nearly all the barley is ripe in appearance, but not dry enough to harvest. Rye also is nearly ripe and combining of both crops should be under way soon.

Three-fourths of the soybeans are planted and most fields up to a good stand. Pastures show excellent growth.

Apples Being Picked

Fruit—Thinning of apples has started. Around Salisbury, transparent apples are being picked. Some very early peaches will be picked next week on the lower part of the Eastern Shore.

Vegetables — The asparagus peak is passed. Lima beans are growing well. Snap beans are being harvested in heavy volume. Cantaloupes are starting to vine. Sweet corn is just coming up. Cucumbers are blooming heavier. Potatoes show excellent foliage and harvesting started in a small way on the Eastern Shore. Tomatoes show excellent vines.

The first circus came to the United States in 1792.

Mt. Etna is Europe's tallest volcano.

Parakeet On Lark At Local Park Is Now Home Again

The sightseeing parakeet which left home for a visit through Constitution Park Monday has been returned to its owner.

Robert R. Golden, superintendent of the park, last night said the owner showed up early yesterday morning with a cage and as she called to the parakeet it flew into it.

She was well acquainted with the bird and had it do several tricks for Golden who had received a number of calls on the wandering sightseer. The bird spent most of Monday afternoon and the night at the Golden home and seemed happy to rejoin its owner.

Oiling Of Streets Gets Underway

The Street Department began its annual street oiling program Monday in the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company section.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner, said under the rotation plan oiling swings to West Side, North End and finally South End.

Meanwhile, the department continues its search for a more economical method of dispensing dust on unpaved streets.

Mrs. Roeder said a two-mile test patch using sodium chloride will be laid out and engineers have assured her the results of the test will be conclusive on the use of the chemical as a solution to the city's problems.

Plane Skids Off Runway

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 16 (AP)—A two-engine C-46 airplane with 39 soldiers aboard ran off the southeast runway at Muscogee County airport today.

No one was injured.

The left motor of the craft was ripped out and landing gear was sheared away as the plane skidded over a 50-foot embankment and dropped into a hollow off the runway.

Resolution On Civil Rights Will Be Given To Bar

A resolution will be submitted at the convention of the Maryland State Bar Association by Horace P. Whitworth Jr., in which he will ask the lawyers to support a move to protect the rights of persons who are held incommunicado by police officers and state's attorneys.

The state law group opens its session Thursday in Atlantic City and the three-day meeting will probably get Whitworth's resolution on either of the first two days of the meeting.

The Allegany County delegate to the Maryland General Assembly said that Former Judge Joseph Sherbow of the Baltimore Supreme Bench will second the motion and deliver a talk in connection with the proposal.

Whitworth led the move which resulted in a hearing before a Legislative Council committee meeting in Hagerstown several weeks ago concerning an Allegany County case in which a man was held for six days without being formally charged by the state's attorney's office.

He is Charles F. Burkett, this city, who was taken into custody for questioning in connection with the investigation of the murder of Mrs. Odessa Meister. Burkett was taken to Hagerstown for questioning and was held in the detention room at the Allegany County Infirmary during the interrogation.

Whitworth and others are seeking legislation by the General Assembly which would spell out in exact terms how long a man could be held before being formally charged with a crime.

The proponents of the move to give greater protection to individuals who become embroiled with law enforcement agencies are also against the practice of taking persons in custody to other counties for questioning.

The role is an exacting one—Sal plays three different women, one a dancer. George Brandt and Jack Gordun are the producers who have slated October 15 for the New York opening.

The explanation Zsa Zsa Garbor gave when she finally arrived in New York was that she didn't know she was supposed to be there a week ago Monday.

She told reporters when she finishes shooting on "Public Enemy No. 1" she will meet with George Sanders and discuss their matrimonial differences.

Zsa Zsa got herself in a little trouble in Europe when she was asked by a newspaper man what she thought of Fernandel as a lover. Her reply was, "Every time I look at him I want to say "giddy up'." This broke in Paris newspapers and when there was a storm Zsa Zsa denied saying it.

Jane Wyman is the latest to succumb to the lure of Las Vegas gold. Nowhere are salaries comparable to those paid in the Nevada resort, so come November or early December, Janie will be the star attraction at the Sands Hotel. My girl will sing and have some of the ex-Copa beauties as a background chorus.

I am sure if you hear Jane on my radio show singing one of her songs from "Let's Do It Again," her Columbia picture, you know Jane will be a real attraction. She made her stage debut when she was one of the young starlets on my first personal appearance tour.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The longest dinner date in town was that of Arthur Loew, Jr., and Mary Murphy, Columbia actress. They started at seven and at one in the morning were still at the table at Chasen's.

Gertrude Niesen's mother is recovering in Queen of Angels Hospital from major surgery. Gertie flew from New York to be with her mother.

Donald O'Connor, who has moved into a beautiful new home, gave his first dinner Saturday night—and planned it all himself.

At the Tallyho, John Payne was with Sandra Curtis, ex-wife of the late Allan Curtis.

Now that Phillip Crosby is out of the hospital and well on the way to recovery following his operation, Bing has postponed his return until the 25th. He and Lindsay and all the boys will go to Elko for the remainder of the summer.

Wooden Nickels? He'll Take 'Em!

"Not for me!" says Mrs. Janie Reeves, a bank employe, as Dr. Albert Applebaum offers her a wooden nickel from his collection.

By BOB HERGUTH
Central Press Correspondent

PEORIA, Ill.—Everybody says, "Don't take any wooden nickels." And thinks, "Who'd be clown enough to take a wooden nickel?"

We give you Dr. Albert Applebaum of Peoria, a widely known dentist who is by no means a clown. He collects wooden nickels—has 19 different specimens and is avidly hunting for more. Only they're scarce. Scarcer than you'd think.

Contrary to popular belief, wooden nickels are not circular or shaped like regular five-cent coins. They're all oblong sheets of wood, maybe three inches long by two inches wide.

Never try to palm one off on a bank. They're monetarily worthless. County fairs, festivals and homecomings usually issue them to raise funds—or for promotion purposes.

Applebaum, who holds card No. 4324 in the American Numismatic association, has been a Peoria dentist for 33 years and a coin collectors for 30. He started out by seeing how many United States coins and bills he could find which were issued in his birth year. He spread out from there to United States legal tender ranging from the Revolutionary war to the present day.

HE WAS first bitten by the wooden money bug 10 years ago, when he stumbled on a specimen from the 1939 Hackensack Valley Tercentenary in Bergen county, New Jersey. Since then, he has slowly been tracking down others—buying some from dealers and a few directly from the organizations involved.

Random samples are from the New York State fair; Kewanee, Ill., Hog Days; Norwood, O., 50th Anniversary celebration, and the Lawrence county, Missouri, Centennial. Denominations range from one wooden nickel to five. A firm in Fostoria, O., manufactures most of this kind of coin.

However, wooden nickels aren't Applebaum's only wacky pieces. He also treasures a three-inch-wide "Bryan dollar," a coin issued by the GOP in 1896 to help finance the campaign against presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan. The Republicans "minted" it to show the size of the dollar people would have to carry if Bryan, the champion of free silver, was elected.

The dentist's biggest genuine American coin is a $50 goldpiece, commemorating the 1915 Panama-Pacific exposition. His smallest United States bill is a three-cent slip of "Fractional Currency" put out during the inflation-ridden Civil war.

He has also branched out into Confederate money ("still plentiful and cheap," he confides) and reached back into pre-Christian days for Greek, Roman and Egyptian pieces. An oddity is "bullet money" from Siam.

Like the rest of America's 25,000 numismatists, Applebaum's prime goal in life is to own an 1804 silver dollar.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

How Al Smith Got A Cop Promoted

John Golden and Victor Ridder, the newspaper publisher, were at the Dutch Treat Club. I introduced them.

"Al Smith told me a story about your father's watch," said the theatrical producer. Then he went on with the yarn.

John Wheeler

It seems in the early days of his political career long before he was ever thought of for governor or President, Smith had two friends. One was a cop or detective who had gotten into a groove, and his chances of promotion seemed slim. He was the father of five or six children and struggling to make both ends meet. The other was called Grogan, because that was not his name, a mysterious character who would disappear at intervals, probably spending some time up the river. Smith met him one day in a neighborhood bar.

"Al, I'm one of your great admirers," he said. "You've always been a good and true pal, and to show you how much I appreciate it, I've got a present here that I'm gonna give you."

With that Grogan pulled a solid gold watch as big as a turnip out of his pocket. On the back sparkled a big diamond.

"Keep it, Al, in return for your friendship and many past favors."

Smith opened the hunting case and on the inside engraved around the diamond was inscribed something like this:

"To Herman Ridder from his affectionate employes on the New York Staats-Zeitung." He tried to hand the present back to Grogan.

"Why you dirty bum," said the man who was to be governor of New York, "you snatched this from the owner of the German newspaper, Herman Ridder."

To make a long story longer, he finally accepted the watch and gave it to the bartender to put in the till. Then he looked up his detective friend, Bill. It took a lot of explaining to make clear the plan he had in mind. Following his instructions the next day Bill went to see the publisher.

"Mr. Ridder," he began, "I am from the New York Police Department. I understand your watch has been stolen."

The newspaperman fumed for a few minutes, complaining about the inadequacy of New York's finest. The detective reported he thought he could deliver his watch. After a couple of days, he went to see Al Smith to tell him how the plot was working out. Now comes the happy ending to the Golden version of the tale. Mr. Ridder recovered his precious timepiece and used his influence to get the policeman promoted. He later became one of the top men on the force.

Victor Ridder had listened patiently.

"It's a good story," he commented, "only it's all wrong. It wasn't a watch at all, but a wallet, and it didn't belong to my father but to the lord mayor of London, who was over here on a visit. My father gave him a dinner at the old Walfdorf, and in Chinatown and elsewhere afterwards. A detective was assigned to escort him, but he must have been looking the other way, for some light-fingered gent or perhaps dame lifted his worship's pocketbook which not only contained money but all his official credentials.

"This naturally caused a big hullabaloo the next day. My father called Inspector Schmittberger and told him he had to find it. Word went out that all the joints would be closed unless the missing poke turned up within 24 hours. It did. That's how he got it back. I remember my father remarking,

"'I hope the next time he comes over here he either leaves his wallet home or keeps in respectable company.'"

"I think mine is the better story," declared John Golden.

"It might be," answered Mr. Ridder, "but mine is the true one."

"Maybe there are two stories," concluded Mr. Golden.

to help make up the Post Office's annual deficit.

"Actually, one cent per letter increase won't make much difference to the average individual," shrugged the postmaster general. "After all, how many letters does the average person write in a year?"

Summerfield also boasted that he would save $10,000,000 in the New York post office alone without firing a single employe — simply by adopting "modern business techniques."

The congressmen listened carefully, didn't openly object to his plans. After the meeting, however, one Republican grumbled: "Summerfield doesn't have to get re-elected. We do. And his 'little increase' will take $250,000,000 out of the pockets of the voters. Every voter in the country will feel it and resent it. I can't think of a better scheme to make every man, woman and child in the country sore at the Republicans. If you ask me, his scheme was dreamed up by one Democrat who's still working over at the Post Office Department."

The dentist's biggest genuine American coin is a $50 goldpiece, commemorating the 1915 Panama-Pacific exposition. His smallest United States bill is a three-cent slip of "Fractional Currency" put out during the inflation-ridden Civil war.

He has also branched out into Confederate money ("still plentiful and cheap," he confides) and reached back into pre-Christian days for Greek, Roman and Egyptian pieces. An oddity is "bullet money" from Siam.

Like the rest of America's 25,000 numismatists, Applebaum's prime goal in life is to own an 1804 silver dollar.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

How Al Smith Got A Cop Promoted

John Golden and Victor Ridder, the newspaper publisher, were at the Dutch Treat Club. I introduced them.

"Al Smith told me a story about your father's watch," said the theatrical producer. Then he went on with the yarn.

John Wheeler

It seems in the early days of his political career long before he was ever thought of for governor or President, Smith had two friends. One was a cop or detective who had gotten into a groove, and his chances of promotion seemed slim. He was the father of five or six children and struggling to make both ends meet. The other was called Grogan, because that was not his name, a mysterious character who would disappear at intervals, probably spending some time up the river. Smith met him one day in a neighborhood bar.

"Al, I'm one of your great admirers," he said. "You've always been a good and true pal, and to show you how much I appreciate it, I've got a present here that I'm gonna give you."

With that Grogan pulled a solid gold watch as big as a turnip out of his pocket. On the back sparkled a big diamond.

"Keep it, Al, in return for your friendship and many past favors."

Smith opened the hunting case and on the inside engraved aroupd the diamond was inscribed something like this:

"To Herman Ridder from his affectionate employes on the New York Staats-Zeitung." He tried to hand the present back to Grogan.

"Why you dirty bum," said the man who was to be governor of New York, "you snatched this from the owner of the German newspaper, Herman Ridder."

To make a long story longer, he finally accepted the watch and gave it to the bartender to put in the till. Then he looked up his detective friend, Bill. It took a lot of explaining to make clear the plan he had in mind. Following his instructions the next day Bill went to see the publisher.

"Mr. Ridder," he began, "I am from the New York Police Department. I understand your watch has been stolen."

The newspaperman fumed for a few minutes, complaining about the inadequacy of New York's finest. The detective reported he thought he could deliver his watch. After a couple of days, he went to see Al Smith to tell him how the plot was working out. Now comes the happy ending to the Golden version of the tale. Mr. Ridder recovered his precious timepiece and used his influence to get the policeman promoted. He later became one of the top men on the force.

Victor Ridder had listened patiently.

"It's a good story," he commented, "only it's all wrong. It wasn't a watch at all, but a wallet, and it didn't belong to my father but to the lord mayor of London, who was over here on a visit. My father gave him a dinner at the old Walfdorf, and in Chinatown and elsewhere afterwards. A detective was assigned to escort him, but he must have been looking the other way, for some light-fingered gent or perhaps dame lifted his worship's pocketbook which not only contained money but all his official credentials.

"This naturally caused a big hullabaloo the next day. My father called Inspector Schmittberger and told him he had to find it. Word went out that all the joints would be closed unless the missing poke turned up within 24 hours. It did. That's how he got it back. I remember my father remarking.

"'I hope the next time he comes over here he either leaves his wallet home or keeps in respectable company.'"

"I think mine is the better story," declared John Golden.

"It might be," answered Mr. Ridder, "but mine is the true one."

"Maybe there are two stories," concluded Mr. Golden.

to help make up the Post Office's annual deficit.

"Actually, one cent per letter increase won't make much difference to the average individual," shrugged the postmaster general. "After all, how many letters does the average person write in a year?"

Summerfield also boasted that he would save $10,000,000 in the New York post office alone without firing a single employe — simply by adopting "modern business techniques."

The congressmen listened carefully, didn't openly object to his plans. After the meeting, however, one Republican grumbled: "Summerfield doesn't have to get reelected. We do. And his 'little increase' will take $250,000,000 out of the pockets of the voters. Every voter in the country will feel it and resent it. I can't think of a better scheme to make every man, woman and child in the country sore at the Republicans. If you ask me, his scheme was dreamed up by one Democrat who's still working over at the Post Office Department."

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

CONSIDER A NO TRUMP

THERE is great danger of defensive ruffing if your two opponents had bid different suits while you were on your way to a high contract. Each of them might be short in the suit bid by his partner. Hence it is advisable to consider whether or not a shift from your own side's best suit into No Trumps might be advisable, which could be the case only if both of the hostile suits are soundly stopped. It is particularly incumbent on you to weigh that shift if you are warned of your side's danger by a business double of the suit contract.

	♠ K Q 10 6 ♥ A Q 8 5 ♦ Q 9 7 5 ♣ 2
♠ 3 ♥ K 10 9 6 4 3 2 ♦ 4 2 ♣ 10 9 6	N W E S	♠ A 9 7 5 4 2 ♥ None ♦ 10 6 ♣ K 8 5 4 3
	♠ J 8 ♥ J 7 ♦ A K J 8 3 ♣ A Q J 7

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl.	2 ♥
Dbl.	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
Pass	Dbl.

West considered his partner's double as a request that he lead the dummy's first-named suit of spades. So the A got the first trick, the 5 was ruffed by West and the heart 10 was ruffed by East. Down two. And it could have been set one more if West had started with a heart lead.

There were some funny features in that bidding. South gained the idea somehow that North had at one stage supported his diamonds, whereas North's only call of that suit was his 5-Diamonds response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps to show one ace. Pure luck was all that enabled South to find such good diamond support.

East's double of the 6-Diamonds was really bad bridge, when there was such a good prospect of beating the contract if his partner was smart enough to see that a club lead would be bad in view of South's having doubled clubs earlier. Either a spade or heart lead should have come from any good defender.

The badness of East's double was that it should have warned both North and South of the imminent hazard of ruffing. Indeed, either member of the pair should have taken it out to 6-No Trumps. Since the heart and club finesses were marked as winners, that could have been made.

If both sides bid ideally on a deal like this, what kind of comparative figuring should the two sides do near the close of the auction?

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Look, Ma, I'm An Angel Of Mercy

Well, Mayor Impellitteri said his series of TV talks on WNBT would be non-political, and his first one, sure 'nuff, was. It was about the city's hospitals, about the care of the sick and the indigent and the dying. Anyone here opposed to caring for the sick, the indigent and the dying? Probably a lot of dirty Republicans.

As a matter of fact, most of the hospitals the good mayor was talking about were built or planned by Mayor La Guardia who was a Republican, though not a very good Republican. New York City's hospitals, both its public ones and its private ones, are among the medical wonders of the world—but you'd hardly suspect it from the mayor's talk. We were shown a lot of still photographs of the outside of hospitals, hardly the most stimulating sight in the world; some films of doctors looking into people's mouths and heard the mayor declare ringingly that medical care would be available to all, regardless of race, creed or color—certainly one of the most non-controvertible statements of our time.

John Crosby

As a television performer, the mayor is no great shakes. He was reading his stuff rather obviously off a board or something, stumbled badly a couple of times and never once employed a final "g." (The mayor says "employin'," "usin'," "doin'," and so forth.) And at the end he was cut off abruptly to make way for the Dinah Shore show. Come to think of it, Miss Dinah may have rough sledding in New York with the mayor driving the folks away from Channel 4 by the boatload.

Chief competitor of the mayor's Tuesday night outpourings is "Captain Video," a fact which caused some sardonic amusement to the New York press. "The contest should be interesting especially since it raises the possibility that, with Impellitteri competing against him, Captain Video may be elected mayor," commented the New York Herald Tribune.

This brought an immediate retort from the Dumont network which harbors Captain Video. "Captain Video has no political ambitions whatsoever regarding New York City . . . The newspapers started this whole thing. If Captain Video should be elected mayor of New York, it'll be their own fault."

All sorts of politicos are taking to the air these days and they fall into certain clear categories. There is the elder statesman type like Alban Barkley who cracks jokes and tells stories about the political past which theoretically illuminate the political present. There is the "give 'em hell" school exemplified by Rudolph Halley, the president of New York City's Council. Then there was the "let's all sit down and talk this thing over" gambit employed with the assistance of the Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne advertising agency.

And, of course, there's the Impellitteri or "Look, Ma, I'm an angel of mercy" approach. I don't know that any of them add much to our political wisdom or their political stature—with the possible exception of Halley who just seems to be running for mayor a little in advance of the campaign. None of these shows has aproached in general interest or in political illumination the old standby commercial shows like "Meet the Press."

Of course, you can hardly expect any politico, in office or out of it, to submit himself to the slings and barbs of the press if he doesn't have to. Nobody likes to answer embarrassing questions. But there is a point of insipidity beyond which every politician had better not venture, too. There is something worse than arousing the antagonism of one's listeners—as any pro can tell the President, the mayor and the rest of them—and that is arousing their indifference.

Or to quote one noted politico: "People just don't want to look at public officials on television unless they're tellin' 'em somethin'." And who said that? Mayor Impellitteri.

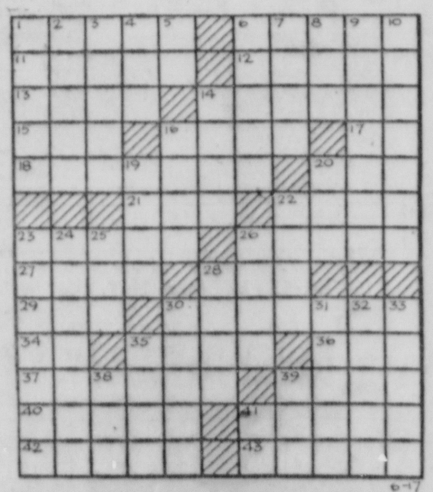
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

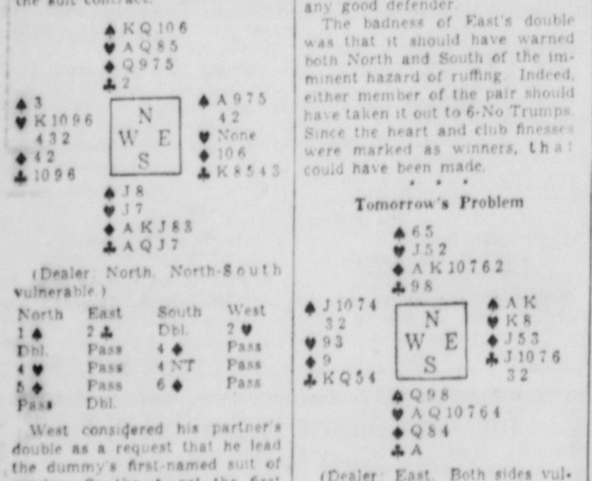
CONSIDER A NO TRUMP

THERE is great danger of defensive ruffing if your two opponents had bid different suits while you were on your way to a high contract. Each of them might be short in the suit bid by his partner. Hence it is advisable to consider whether or not a shift from your own side's best suit into No Trumps might be advisable, which could be the case only if both of the hostile suits are soundly stopped. It is particularly incumbent on you to weigh that shift if you are warned of your side's danger by a business double of the suit contract.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl.	2 ♥
Dbl.	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
Pass	Dbl.

West considered his partner's double as a request that he lead the dummy's first-named suit of spades. So the A got the first trick, the 5 was ruffed by West and the heart 10 was ruffed by East. Down two. And it could have been set one more if West had started with a heart lead.

There were some funny features in that bidding. South gained the idea somehow that North had at one stage supported his diamonds, whereas North's only call of that suit was his 5-Diamonds response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps to show one ace. Pure luck was all that enabled South to find such good diamond support.

East's double of the 6-Diamonds was really bad bridge, when there was such a good prospect of beating the contract if his partner was smart enough to see that a club lead would be bad in view of South's having doubled clubs earlier. Either a spade or heart lead should have come from any good defender.

The badness of East's double was that it should have warned both North and South of the imminent hazard of ruffing. Indeed, either member of the pair should have taken it out to 6-No Trumps. Since the heart and club finesses were marked as winners, that could have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If both sides bid ideally on a deal like this, what kind of comparative figuring should the two sides do near the close of the auction?

Radio And Television

Look, Ma, I'm An Angel Of Mercy

Well, Mayor Impellitteri said his series of TV talks on WNBT would be non-political, and his first one, sure 'nuff, was. It was about the city's hospitals, about the care of the sick and the indigent and the dying. Anyone here opposed to caring for the sick, the indigent and the dying? Probably a lot of dirty Republicans.

As a matter of fact, most of the hospitals the good mayor was talking about were built or planned by Mayor La Guardia who was a Republican, though not a very good Republican. New York City's hospitals, both its public ones and its private ones, are among the medical wonders of the world—but you'd hardly suspect it from the mayor's talk. We were shown a lot of still photographs of the outside of hospitals, hardly the most stimulating sight in the world; some films of doctors looking into people's mouths and heard the mayor declare ringingly that medical care would be available to all, regardless of race, creed or color—certainly one of the most non-controvertible statements of our time.

John Crosby

As a television performer, the mayor is no great shakes. He was reading his stuff rather obviously off a board or something, stumbled badly a couple of times and never once employed a final "g." (The mayor says "employin'," "usin'," "doin'," and so forth.) And at the end he was cut off abruptly to make way for the Dinah Shore show. Come to think of it, Miss Dinah may have rough sledding in New York with the mayor driving the folks away from Channel 4 by the boatload.

Chief competitor of the mayor's Tuesday night outpourings is "Captain Video," a fact which caused some sardonic amusement to the New York press. "The contest should be interesting especially since it raises the possibility that, with Impellitteri competing against him, Captain Video may be elected mayor," commented the New York Herald Tribune.

This brought an immediate retort from the Dumont network which harbors Captain Video. "Captain Video has no political ambitions whatsoever regarding New York City . . . The newspapers started this whole thing. If Captain Video should be elected mayor of New York, it'll be their own fault."

All sorts of politicos are taking to the air these days and they fall into certain clear categories. There is the elder statesman type like Alban Barkley who cracks jokes and tells stories about the political past which theoretically illuminate the political present. There is the "give 'em hell" school exemplified by Rudolph Halley, the president of New York City's Council. Then there was the "let's all sit down and talk this thing over" gambit employed with the assistance of the Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne advertising agency.

And, of course, there's the Impellitteri or "Look, Ma, I'm an angel of mercy" approach. I don't know that any of them add much to our political wisdom or their political stature—with the possible exception of Halley who just seems to be running for mayor a little in advance of the campaign. None of these shows has aproached in general interest or in political illumination the old standby commercial shows like "Meet the Press."

Of course, you can hardly expect any politico, in office or out of it, to submit himself to the slings and barbs of the press if he doesn't have to. Nobody likes to answer embarrassing questions. But there is a point of insipidity beyond which every politician had better not venture, too. There is something worse than arousing the antagonism of one's listeners—as any pro can tell the President, the mayor and the rest of them—and that is arousing their indifference.

Or to quote one noted politico: "People just don't want to look at public officials on television unless they're tellin' 'em somethin'." And who said that? Mayor Impellitteri.

Market Rallies After Prices Drop To New Low For Year

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP) — An afternoon rally stemmed a market decline today that at one time sent average stock prices to a new low for the year.

Declines far outnumbered advances, but the rally pared most losses and enabled some groups to show gains for the day. Selected oil stocks led the recovery movements, but most integrated petroleum companies were off fractionally at the close. Groups ending the day on the upside included the rubbers and aircrafts. Steels, motors, utilities, metals and rails were mixed while farm machineries, televisions, chemicals, airlines and buildings were mostly lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed at $104.30, down 40 cents and only 10 cents above the low of the year, reached June 9. During the morning, this average went to a new low of $104.10.

The A. P. industrial average closed at a new low for the year of $135.20, down 40 cents. The rail average was down 30 cents at $83.20 and the utility average down 50 cents at $50.50.

Volume for the day was 1,370,000 shares, compared with 1,090,000 yesterday, when the market lost considerable ground.

U. S. Steel closed up ⅛ at 37¾, General Motors was off ⅛ at 58⅜, and Standard Oil was unchanged at 69⅜.

There were 259 advances and 577 declines today and 1,131 issues were traded in. Yesterday, 1,079 issues traded.

Stocks declining today included Reynolds Metal, down 1¼ at 45¼; Atlantic Coast Line, off 1½ at 97½; Seaboard Air Line Railroad, down 1 at 107; St. Louis-Southwestern, off 5 at 270; Union Carbide, down down ⅞ at 62⅛, and Consolidated Natural Gas, down 1⅞ at 48½.

Market Rallies After Prices Drop To New Low For Year

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP) — An afternoon rally stemmed a market decline today that at one time sent average stock prices to a new low for the year.

Declines far outnumbered advances, but the rally pared most losses and enabled some groups to show gains for the day. Selected oil stocks led the recovery movements, but most integrated petroleum companies were off fractionally at the close. Groups ending the day on the upside included the rubbers and aircrafts. Steels, motors, utilities, metals and rails were mixed while farm machineries, televisions, chemicals, airlines and buildings were mostly lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed at $104.30 down 40 cents and only 10 cents above the low of the year, reached June 9. During the morning, this average went to a new low of $104.10.

The A. P. industrial average closed at a new low for the year of $135.20, down 40 cents. The rail average was down 30 cents at $83.20 and the utility average down 50 cents at $50.50.

Volume for the day was 1,370,000 shares, compared with 1,090,000 yesterday, when the market lost considerable ground.

U. S. Steel closed up ⅛ at 37¾, General Motors was off ⅛ at 58⅜, and Standard Oil was unchanged at 69⅜.

There were 259 advances and 577 declines today and 1,131 issues were traded in. Yesterday, 1,079 issues traded.

First Cumberland Beauty Enters Jaycees Pagent

Miss Carolyn Deck, 18-year-old Allegany High School graduate, becomes the first Cumberland girl to enter the Miss Western Maryland pageant being sponsored this year by the city's Junior Association of Commerce.

Miss Deck, who was graduated from the West Side high school this June, has been avidly interested in entering the beauty contest since she was 14 years of age. She immediately entered upon becoming eligible on her 18th birthday.

The auburn-haired miss lives at 121 North Allegany Street, has green eyes and likes to read and study music. She appeared in many musical productions while attending Allegany, including "The Chocolate Soldier" and Senior Class Night.

For her talent portion of the program in the Miss Western Maryland finals at the Maryland Theatre Thursday at 8:30 p. m., Miss Deck will sing several selections.

Carolyn is the sixth entrant in the beauty contest. The others are from McCoole, Pinto, Westernport and Midland. The winner of the Miss Western Maryland title will vie for the state title later this summer. The Miss Maryland pageant also will be held here in Cumberland.

Othér entries in the Miss Western Maryland affair are Miss Shirley Grant and Miss Sarah Jeanne Kenner, both of Westernport; Miss Winifred Louise LaRue, Pinto; Miss Emma Gail Jones, Midland, and Miss Barbara Ella Haywood of McCoole.

Local Guard To Leave For Camp June 27

To Travel By Motor Convoy To AP Hill

The state of Virginia will be the scene of an "invasion" Saturday, June 27, when local units of the Maryland National Guard join a regimental motor convoy to Camp AP Hill, Va., for a two-week summer training encampment.

Warrant Officer Joseph E. Jolley, First Battalion administrative officer, said an advance detachment of the local units will leave next Wednesday for AP Hill under the command of Lt. Lear T. Powell.

Headquarters, Headquarters Company, and C Company of Cumberland, and D Company of Frostburg will leave for the camping area June 27. Jolley said this year the Guardsmen will travel by autos and trucks. In past years units always traveled by train. The main body will be commanded by Lt. Col. Robert C. Matlick.

Other Units To Join

The local convoy will be joined in Romney, W. Va., by the 121st Engineer Battalion, of Oakland; in Hagerstown by Company B and in Warrenton, Va., by Company A. Other units will join the convoy as they travel toward Camp AP Hill.

Jolley pointed out that all units of the 29th Division will be traveling to the encamping area and units of other divisions will be enroute from other areas. During the travel date Route 301 and other highways will be restricted to civilian vehicles.

For the first Monday and Tuesday of the field training, the local units will be on the range training in all types of weapons. They will take training with weapons from the pistol to the rocket launcher.

Units will set up and live in tents during the two weeks at camp. Local units will take along their own electrical generating plant for lighting and showing motion pictures after duty hours.

To Present Awards

Jolley added that on Saturday, July 4, there will be a division review on the Camp AP Hill air strip which is open to the public. Following the review, a regimental parade is scheduled. A regimental formation will be held after the parade and awards will be presented to units and individuals.

On Friday, July 10, the division softball playoffs will be held to determine division championships. Jolley said all other types of athletics will be conducted during the two weeks after duty hours.

The units will return by convoy July 11.

Guard officials said local units will accept enlistments up until noon June 26 in Headquarters and C companies. Those enlisting will be able to accompany the units to summer training.

Jolley added that motion pictures will be taken of the units during the two-week training to be edited into a documentary film for lectures. The Guard also plans to show the film at local meetings of organizations when requested.

Injured Woman Awarded $11,000 In Damage Suit

Jury Decides First Of 21 Cases Set

An $11,000 verdict was awarded yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Joretta Proudfoot Allwine of Rowlesburg, W. Va., by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury which deliberated her $20,000 suit for two hours at the conclusion of a two-day trial presided over by Associate Judge George Henderson.

The verdict was against Elizabeth A. Gilmore, administratrix of the estate of Timothy M. Gilmore, and James Moran, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran.

Five Were Killed

Both Gilmore and Moran, along with three other Tri-Towns young men, were killed August 31 in a tragic accident along McMullen Highway at Pinto. Mrs. Allwine, then Miss Proudfoot, was severely cut about the face when the car in which she was sitting was struck by Moran's car, which Gilmore was driving.

In returning the verdict the jury decided that Mrs. Allwine's husband, Lewis Howard Allwine, Highland Park, N. J., then her fiance, was not guilty of any negligence in parking along the north side of the highway.

The former Miss Proudfoot had filed suit last fall against both the Gilmore and Moran estates. Later the court granted a motion adding Lewis Howard Allwine and his father, Lewis Thomas Allwine, owner of the car, as third parties defendant. Miss Proudfoot and the younger Allwine were married January 24 in Upshur County, W.Va.

Four Issues

In retiring to deliberate the jury of eight women and four men was given four issues to decide.

They were:

Was Timothy M. Gilmore guilty of any negligence in driving the Moran car which directly caused or contributed to cause the accident in which plaintiff was injured?

Was Lewis Howard Allwine guilty of any negligence in parking along the north side of the highway which directly caused or contributed to cause the accident?

Was Gilmore on August 31 using and driving the Moran car as the agent of Richard Moran?

What, if any, damages were suffered as a result of the accident?

To both the first and third issues the jury on which George J. Rossworm was foreman decided "Yes" and on the second issue the answer was "No." For damages the jury set the figure at $11,000.

$7,000 Expenses

Attorneys Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, who had represented the Rowlesburg young woman, showed that hospitalization, treatment and plastic surgery to her many facial scars had cost about $7,000.

Allwine had stopped his car along the north side of the highway to go to the assistance of another motorist, Wilbur Fresh, 25, Akron, Ohio, who was having engine trouble.

The two-day trial which ended yesterday was only the first of 21 which have been docketed in court here as a result of the tragic crash. The other 20 have been set for trial June 24 through June 26. There has been some comment among Court House attaches that the cases might be removed to another court for trial. The 12 jurors who heard the case Monday and yesterday are expected to be excused from sitting in any of the other trials involving the same accident.

Seven attorneys participated in the two-day trial. Besides Ryan and Wilson they were William C. Walsh, William A. Gunter and Louis A. Fatkin, representing the Moran interests; W. Early Cobey and C. William Gilchrist, representing the Allwines. All except Fatkin and Gilchrist took part in the closing argument.

150 Enrolled In Band School

Some 150 youngsters have enrolled in the Summer Band School which is being conducted at Pennsylvania Avenue School until Friday, June 26.

The school has the approval of the Board of Education and Superintendent Ralph R. Webster. Leader had anticipated only about 75 pupils in the school which started Monday.

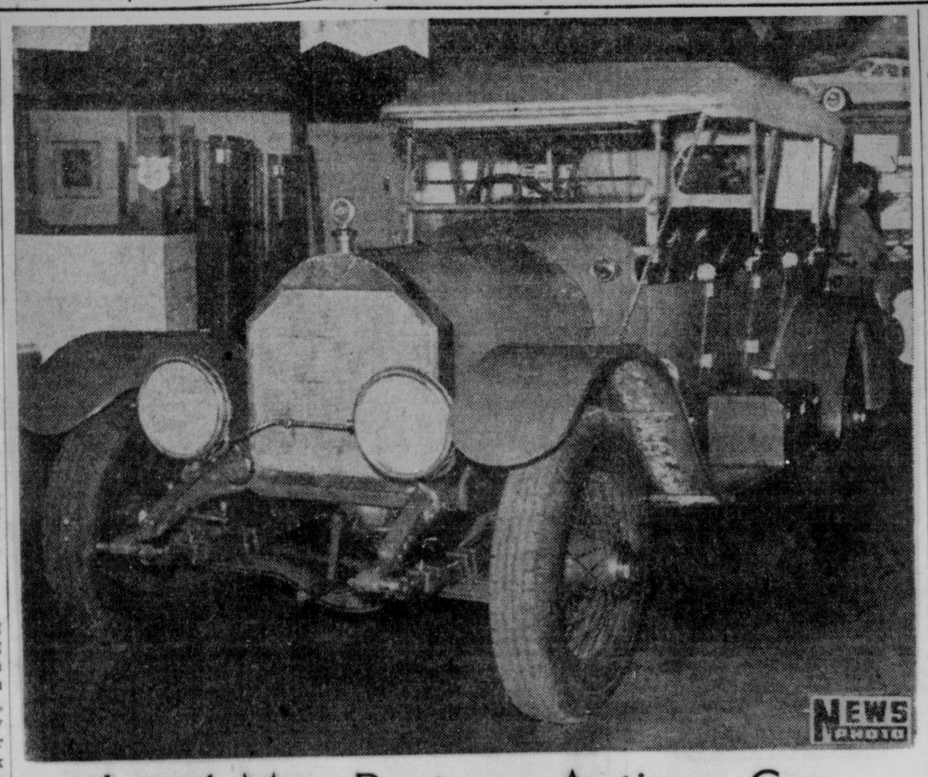
Instruction is intended primarily for pupils from grades four to nine. Classes are scheduled for beginners as well as advanced students. Some time is being set aside for solo and ensemble work.

Cumberland, Mt. Savage and Oldtown schools are represented at Pennsylvania Avenue School. Georges Creek schools are taking part in a similar workshop at Westernport.

Directors of the school in Cumberland are Harry Malcolm and Gordon F. Williams. William Simpson is in charge at Westernport.

To Confer Degrees

The wrecking crew of Voiture 164, 40 & 8, Cumberland, will confer degrees on a class of candidates of Keyser Voiture 1212 Saturday at 7:30 p. m. at Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club.



Local Man Restores Antique Car

Shown above is the 1913 Simplex Touring Car which was completely restored by Alvin B. Storey, 806 Buckingham Road. Storey now has the auto on exhibit at Collins Garage, 75 Henderson Boulevard, for benefit of local residents. Storey spent nearly a year of work and extensive research in restoring the antique automobile to its original condition including the color and canvas top. The auto, built for the wealthy man of the early 1900,s cost $6,700 when new and saw ownership by four successful Pittsburgh families in its history.

1913 Simplex Touring Car With Tragic History Restored By Alvin B. Storey

By LARRY T. GRECO
News Staff Writer

Alvin B. Storey, 806 Buckingham Road, antique auto enthusiast, has completed restoration of another antique car — this time a 1913 Simplex Model 38A touring car.

The auto, restored and rebuilt to its original specifications, is on display at Collins Garage, 75 Henderson Avenue, for inspection by the public.

Seeing its present beauty made possible by Storey's skilled hands, one would never guess that once the auto lay broken and ugly in the silence following a road crash The highway mishap was the beginning of a strange story involving the auto.

Tragic History

In its history, the Simplex was owned by four wealthy Pittsburgh families, for the auto was a rich man's car costing $6,700 when put on the market in 1913. The chassis alone cost $4,100, made by the Simplex Automobile Company, New York City, while the aluminum body, built by the Holbrook Company of New York, cost $2,600.

The car's tragic history began with ownership by the second Pittsburgh family. The owner's son was killed when the high-speed auto crashed into an embankment in 1922.

Not long afterward, the saddened father saw additional grief with the death of his wife. In his sorrow, the old man tore down a wall of his mansion, pushed the auto inside and sealed it in like a convicted murderer.

Then the father sealed the old house completely except for the basement where he lived in seclusion until his death in 1948, a broken-hearted hermit.

Storey said colored motion pictures were taken of the car being taken from the home following the father's death. He plans to acquire the film soon.

The local man purchased the antique from a Mr. French of Latrobe, Pa., last July and worked on it in a garage in the rear of his home. Storey explained that a job of restoration requires hard work, extensive research, hunting for blueprints and diligent investigation. The restoration must be complete in every detail to the original.

Extensive Research

In restoring the Simplex, Storey traveled to Milwaukee to get facts from experts, to Chicago for electrical blueprints, to Philadelphia for research in the public library there, to New York City for additional library research and to Boston to talk with Edgar L. Roy, a top U. S. authority on the auto. Roy and Storey discussed the mechanical aspects of the automobile.

The Simplex was built by the Simplex Automobile Company of New York which started in business in 1904. It does not exist today, however. The company was started by Smith Mobley and a brother-in-law who began as importers of foreign cars, especially the German Mercedes, then known as the best car in the world.

The company built approximately 1,480 cars and Storey's antique is the 1,326th one. Today, only 38 are known to exist. All the steel used in producing the cars was imported from Robert Bosch, a company in Germany which is still in business.

A newspaper advertisement in 1910 boasted, "the unbeatable speed, reliability and endurance of the Stock Simplex, as produced daily for delivery to the general public, is a matter of motoring history."

Storey pointed out that at the time the 1913 Simplex was made, autos were guaranteed for 30 days, and some high-priced cars for 90 days against defects of workmanship and materials. The Simplex on the other hand, was the only American car fully guaranteed for one year. The company, in addition, guaranteed the mechanical parts of the car indefinitely if the original owner did not sell it.

Same Specifications

Another service offered by the company provided that if the car broke down away from the owner's home, the company would pay expenses for the family to return home or hotel expenses until the auto could be repaired.

Some of the specifications of the car include spoke wheels, dual ignition, four large cylinders which have a cubic inch displacement greater than the present day Cadillac or Chrysler. It is capable of speeds up to 80 miles per hour, has four foreward gears and one reverse, and a gasoline tank capacity of 40 gallons with a four-gallon reserve.

Storey, who learned about autos from his father's automotive business when he was a boy, last year completed restoration of another auto, a 1903 Holley Motorette, believed to be the first commercial car in Western Maryland.

The Simplex will be on display until the last of this month when Storey leaves for Charlotte, N. C. The local man has been a resident of Cumberland for 23 years and is employed as an assistant superintendent with the Celanese Corporation of America.

This month he will move to Charlotte where he will continue work with the Celanese Corporation. However, he plans to continue his hobby of restoring cars.

5 Local Youths Face Hearings In Theft Wave

Five local youths, including three brothers, face hearings in Juvenile Court this morning in connection with a wave of thefts and vandalism which occurred in Cumberland over a period of several months.

The solution to the series of thefts and vandalism by City Police came about Monday with the arrest of the three brothers who later admitted being involved in the wave.

Stole Purses, Car Parts

Two other youths, picked up, were questioned, and admitted taking part. Yesterday, city detectives reported some of the boys admitted taking seven pocketbooks from Constitution Park since its opening this year. Total amount of money involved was about $10 and the usual contents of the pocketbooks were thrown away.

A watch reportedly taken was later recovered. On February 6, 1953, four 15-inch chrome wheel covers, a generator, four chrome rims and two batteries were taken from Whetsell's Garage, 120 North Centre Street. The boys told police they were involved in the theft and had sold the goods.

The parents of the juveniles have been summoned to report for the hearings.

Officer J. Henry Stitcher provided the first break in the cases Sunday when he picked up the young North End brothers, ranging in age from 12 to 16 years.

The borthers reportedly admitted taking about $700 worth of jewelry from a car while it was parked at a North Centre Street service station.

Damaged Church Interior

Detective Roy C. Hawse said the boys later told him they had been involved in several other cases, and implicated a fourth boy.

Van and Detective Leo E. P. Law said the fourth lad, 13, of North End, admitted taking part in the entry of an unused Wallace Street building formerly occupied by North Cumberland (now Central) Assembly of God Church on May 12 when about $100 worth of property was damaged. This case was cleared up Monday following questioning by the detectives.

Lt. Van said officers learned that the boys had been stealing and selling articles over a period of several monthe in order to obtain spending money.

Weather

Weather continued to be kind to racing fans yesterday with temperature not too warm and partly clear skies. The Weather Bureau predicted increased cloudiness and scattered thundershowers today, however. High temperature yesterday was 81, according to Constitution Park weather station; low was 49 and at 8 p. m. mercury stood at 71 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 59 per cent.

New Filtration Plant Plans Being Readied

First Phase Will Be Completed Soon

Plans for the second phase of the filtration work being done at the Evitts Creek Water Company plant will be completed within the next six weeks, Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer from Baltimore, reported at a meeting held in Mayor Roy W. Eves' office in City Hall yesterday.

The meeting was called by Water Commissioner William J. Edwards for the purpose of getting a complete report on the progress being made in the modernization of chemical facilities at the water plant and the addition of six new filters to supplement those now in use.

Regester and his assistant, E. A. Kidd, met with Eves, Edwards, C. H. Nuzum, city engineer, and George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company.

Ordered August 6, 1951

The first phase of the work which was ordered by the Mayor and City Council August 6, 1951, is nearing completion Edwards noted and Regester and Kidd are expected to inspect the facilities at the filtration plant today.

Six new filters which will supplement the six filters now in use at the plant will be completed by the first of the month, Edwards reported. The modernization of the chemical facilities which purify the water used by the city of Cumberland and reduce the sediment content of the water also will be finished about the same time. The latter work is being done by workers for the Evitts Creek Water Company, following plans drawn up by Regester.

The added filters will supply a capacity of six million gallons of water daily for consumption, Regester explained.

Passed $350,000 Bond Issue

The city passed a bond issue of $350,000 to supplement $175,000 in a post war fund with the money allocated for the filtration program. Approximately $287,000 has already been spent and the plans for the second phase of the work must fall within the allotted $238,000 remaining in the fund, Edwards said.

Regester said the second step, which will be started as soon as he completes the plans, involves the modernization of existing 12 filters, including the six new ones just being finished, and wash-water facilities at the filtration plant.

It includes motor-driven wash-water pumps, mechanization of operating valves, removal of filter roofs and gallery floor, housing of existing filter area, rate controllers, gauges and partial replacement of filter material.

This work is expected to cost the city and the water company approximately $120,000, he stated.

Will Relieve Murky Water

With the addition of two combination mixing, flocculation and settling basins of the circular up-flow contract type with piping adjacent to the enlarged filter installation at the plant, it is expected the mixing of chemicals and the removal of sediment will be speeded up and that the city will be spared situations such as at present, when much of the water used is murky and muddy.

The present clearwell damage, which is the cause of the murky water, will be repaired by the first of the month and the old type settling basins now in use at the plant will be converted into clearwells to speed up the action of purifying the water, Regester explained.

Regester and Kidd will report the results of their inspection tour at the plant today to Commissioner Edwards.

Pine Ave. Pool Being Repaired For Reopening

The Pine Avenue swimming pool is being readied for opening sometime next week, Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, said yesterday.

The rec department is presently working to prepare the pool for its opening within the next few days, Pence said, adding that Frank Page will be the lifeguard at the pool for the summer activity.

Pence said Page, a student at Carver High School, must be given a first aid and Red Cross instructor's lifesaving course before assuming his duties at the pool. The tests will be arranged immediately upon completion of the work at the pool, he added.

The pool is being scrubbed down by rec department workers and will be painted and repaired, especially the caulking of cracks in the pool. The bath house will be repaired and a new diving board will be installed.

Meanwhile the training institute for playground supervisors continues under the supervision of Pence and his staff, Daily instruction classes are being held to complete the course, Pence stated.

School Board Approves Five Job Contracts

George Awarded McCoole Project

Contracts for five school construction and repair projects totaling $110,608.02 were approved yesterday afternoon by the Allegany County Board of Education.

In four of the five cases the contract went to the low bidder. The only exception was the contract for construction of a two-room addition and an auditorium at the McCoole Elementary School.

$560 Higher Than Low

That job went to the George Construction Company, this city, which offered to do the work by the end of August for $61,536, some $560 more than the low bid of Ray C. Coffman of Keyser, W. Va., who submitted a price of $60,970.

No explanation was offered by the Board of Education except that the job was being awarded to a local contractor.

Earlier in the meeting, F. Patrick Allender and several other representatives of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Council had appeared before the board to protest that advertisements for the McCoole and Lincoln School jobs did not stipulate that the contractor must pay prevailing wages for the area. He said this could lead to contractors from other states bidding jobs and paying laborers less than the prevailing scale. Allender and his associates were told that the matter would be taken under advisement for further consideration.

Vandegrift Gets Job

The contract for the new Lincoln School for Negroes in Frostburg, a one-room building with storage and toilet facilities, went to the low bidder, John I. Vandegrift Company, this city, at $30,240. This project also must be finished before the reopening of schools in September.

L and Y Plumbing Company of Pinto, the low bidder among four who submitted prices, was awarded the contract to furnish and install two new boilers and a stoker at Beall Elementary School in Frostburg for $12,698.

A Keyser firm did get the contracts on two acoustical tile jobs. C. B. Burgess will furnish and install acoustical tile in the West Side School cafeteria here for $3,978.40 and in the auditorium at Beall High School in Frostburg for $2,155.62. Burgess was lower than two other bidders on both jobs.

The board also heard requests from two architectural firms to be considered in future jobs in the county's $3,500,000 school construction program. They were S. Russ Minter, local architect, who has done the work on most of the county's recent school jobs, and the firm of Johannus and Murray of Silver Spring. No action was taken in this matter.

Joseph Byrnes, a teacher at Pennsylvania Avenue School, was granted a leave of absence because he soon will enter military service.

Two Hospitalized By Minor Mishaps

Two persons were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of injuries suffered in minor mishaps.

Marshall Oates, nine-year-old son of Raymond and Virginia Neff, 310 Waverly Terrace, injured his right forearm while playing yesterday. He was admitted at about 4:40 p. m. for observation and X-rays.

Mrs. Lily Harding, 90, of Sandusky, Ohio, was admitted at 6:50 p. m. with a fractured hip. Attaches said Mrs. Harding fell at her home while being visited by her daughter, Mrs. George Martin, 1401 Bedford Street, this city. She was brought to the local hospital from Ohio by ambulance.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Laing, 9102 Kilpatrick Avenue, Skokie, Ill., announce the birth of a daughter June 15. Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Laing, 802 Williams Street, are the paternal grandparents and Mrs. Anna Baken, Frostburg, is maternal grandmother.

Local Guard To Leave For Camp June 27

To Travel By Motor Convoy To AP Hill

The state of Virginia will be the scene of an "invasion" Saturday, June 27, when local units of the Maryland National Guard join a regimental motor convoy to Camp AP Hill, Va., for a two-week summer training encampment.

Warrant Officer Joseph E. Jolley, First Battalion administrative officer, said an advance detachment of the local units will leave next Wednesday for AP Hill under the command of Lt. Lear T. Powell.

Headquarters, Headquarters Company, and C Company of Cumberland, and D Company of Frostburg will leave for the camping area June 27. Jolley said this year the Guardsmen will travel by autos and trucks. In past years units always traveled by train. The main body will be commanded by Lt. Col. Robert C. Matlick.

Other Units To Join

The local convoy will be joined in Romney, W. Va., by the 121st Engineer Battalion, of Oakland; in Hagerstown by Company B and in Warrenton, Va., by Company A. Other units will join the convoy as they travel toward Camp AP Hill.

Jolley pointed out that all units of the 29th Division will be traveling to the encamping area and units of other divisions will be enroute from other areas. During the travel date Route 301 and other highways will be restricted to civilian vehicles.

For the first Monday and Tuesday of the field training, the local units will be on the range training in all types of weapons. They will take training with weapons from the pistol to the rocket launcher.

Units will set up and live in tents during the two weeks at camp. Local units will take along their own electrical generating plant for lighting and showing motion pictures after duty hours.

To Present Awards

Jolley added that on Saturday, July 4, there will be a division review on the Camp AP Hill air strip which is open to the public. Following the review, a regimental parade is scheduled. A regimental formation will be held after the parade and awards will be presented to units and individuals.

On Friday, July 10, the division softball playoffs will be held to determine division championships. Jolley said all other types of athletics will be conducted during the two weeks after duty hours.

The units will return by convoy July 11.

Guard officials said local units will accept enlistments up until noon June 26 in Headquarters and C companies. Those enlisting will be able to accompany the units to summer training.

Jolley added that motion pictures will be taken of the units during the two-week training to be edited into a documentary film for lectures. The Guard also plans to show the film at local meetings of organizations when requested.

150 Enrolled In Band School

Some 150 youngsters have enrolled in the Summer Band School which is being conducted at Pennsylvania Avenue School until Friday, June 26.

The school has the approval of the Board of Education and Superintendent Ralph R. Webster. Leader had anticipated only about 75 pupils in the school which started Monday.

Instruction is intended primarily for pupils from grades four to nine. Classes are scheduled for beginners as well as advanced students. Some time is being set aside for solo and ensemble work.

Cumberland, Mt. Savage and Oldtown schools are represented at Pennsylvania Avenue School. Georges Creek schools are taking part in a similar workshop at Westernport.

Directors of the school in Cumberland are Harry Malcolm and Gordon F. Williams. William Simpson is in charge at Westernport.

Injured Woman Awarded $11,000 In Damage Suit

Jury Decides First Of 21 Cases Set

An $11,000 verdict was awarded yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Joretta Proudfoot Allwine of Rowlesburg, W. Va., by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury which deliberated her $20,000 suit for two hours at the conclusion of a two-day trial presided over by Associate Judge George Henderson.

The verdict was against Elizabeth A. Gilmore, administratrix of the estate of Timothy M. Gilmore, and James Moran, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran.

Five Were Killed

Both Gilmore and Moran, along with three other Tri-Towns young men, were killed August 31 in a tragic accident along McMullen Highway at Pinto. Mrs. Allwine, then Miss Proudfoot, was severely cut about the face when the car in which she was sitting was struck by Moran's car, which Gilmore was driving.

In returning the verdict the jury decided that Mrs. Allwine's husband, Lewis Howard Allwine, Highland Park, N. J., then her fiance, was not guilty of any negligence in parking along the north side of the highway.

The former Miss Proudfoot had filed suit last fall against both the Gilmore and Moran estates. Later the court granted a motion adding Lewis Howard Allwine and his father, Lewis Thomas Allwine, owner of the car, as third parties defendant. Miss Proudfoot and the younger Allwine were married January 24 in Upshur County, W.Va.

Four Issues

In retiring to deliberate the jury of eight women and four men was given four issues to decide.

They were:

Was Timothy M. Gilmore guilty of any negligence in driving the Moran car which directly caused or contributed to cause the accident in which plaintiff was injured?

Was Lewis Howard Allwine guilty of any negligence in parking along the north side of the highway which directly caused or contributed to cause the accident?

Was Gilmore on August 31 using and driving the Moran car as the agent of Richard Moran?

What, if any, damages were suffered as a result of the accident?

To both the first and third issues the jury on which George J. Rossworm was foreman decided "Yes" and on the second issue the answer was "No." For damages the jury set the figure at $11,000.

$7,000 Expenses

Attorneys Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, who had represented the Rowlesburg young woman, showed that hospitalization, treatment and plastic surgery to her many facial scars had cost about $7,000.

Allwine had stopped his car along the north side of the highway to go to the assistance of another motorist, Wilbur Fresh, 25, Akron, Ohio, who was having engine trouble.

The two-day trial which ended yesterday was only the first of 21 which have been docketed in court here as a result of the tragic crash. The other 20 have been set for trial June 24 through June 26. There has been some comment among Court House attaches that the cases might be removed to another court for trial. The 12 jurors who heard the case Monday and yesterday are expected to be excused from sitting in any of the other trials involving the same accident.

Seven attorneys participated in the two-day trial. Besides Ryan and Wilson they were William C. Walsh, William A. Gunter and Louis A. Fatkin, representing the Moran interests; W. Early Cobey and C. William Gilchrist, representing the Allwines. All except Fatkin and Gilchrist took part in the closing argument.

Local Man Restores Antique Car

Shown above is the 1913 Simplex Touring Car which was completely restored by Alvin B. Storey, 806 Buckingham Road. Storey now has the auto on exhibit at Collins Garage, 75 Henderson Boulevard, for benefit of local residents. Storey spent nearly a year of work and extensive research in restoring the antique automobile to its original condition including the color and canvas top. The auto, built for the wealthy man of the early 1900,s cost $6,700 when new and saw ownership by four successful Pittsburgh families in its history.

1913 Simplex Touring Car With Tragic History Restored By Alvin B. Storey

By LARRY T. GRECO
News Staff Writer

Alvin B. Storey, 806 Buckingham Road, antique auto enthusiast, has completed restoration of another antique car — this time a 1913 Simplex Model 38A touring car.

The auto, restored and rebuilt to its original specifications, is on display at Collins Garage, 75 Henderson Avenue, for inspection by the public.

Seeing its present beauty made possible by Storey's skilled hands, one would never guess that once the auto lay broken and ugly in the silence following a road crash The highway mishap was the beginning of a strange story involving the auto.

Tragic History

In its history, the Simplex was owned by four wealthy Pittsburgh families, for the auto was a rich man's car costing $6,700 when put on the market in 1913. The chassis alone cost $4,100, made by the Simplex Automobile Company, New York City, while the aluminum body, built by the Holbrook Company of New York, cost $2,600.

The car's tragic history began with ownership by the second Pittsburgh family. The owner's son was killed when the high-speed auto crashed into an embankment in 1922.

Not long afterward, the saddened father saw additional grief with the death of his wife. In his sorrow, the old man tore down a wall of his mansion, pushed the auto inside and sealed it in like a convicted murderer.

Then the father sealed the old house completely except for the basement where he lived in seclusion until his death in 1948, a broken-hearted hermit.

Storey said colored motion pictures were taken of the car being taken from the home following the father's death. He plans to acquire the film soon.

The local man purchased the antique from a Mr. French of Latrobe, Pa., last July and worked on it in a garage in the rear of his home. Storey explained that a job of restoration requires hard work, extensive research, hunting for blueprints and diligent investigation. The restoration must be complete in every detail to the original.

Extensive Research

In restoring the Simplex, Storey traveled to Milwaukee to get facts from experts, to Chicago for electrical blueprints, to Philadelphia for research in the public library there, to New York City for additional library research and to Boston to talk with Edgar L. Roy, a top U. S. authority on the auto. Roy and Storey discussed the mechanical aspects of the automobile.

The Simplex was built by the Simplex Automobile Company of New York which started in business in 1904. It does not exist today, however. The company was started by Smith Mobley and a brother-in-law who began as importers of foreign cars, especially the German Mercedes, then known as the best car in the world.

The company built approximately 1,480 cars and Storey's antique is the 1,326th one. Today, only 38 are known to exist. All the steel used in producing the cars was imported from Robert Bosch, a company in Germany which is still in business.

A newspaper advertisement in 1910 boasted, "the unbeatable speed, reliability and endurance of the Stock Simplex, as produced daily for delivery to the general public, is a matter of motoring history."

Storey pointed out that at the time the 1913 Simplex was made, autos were guaranteed for 30 days, and some high-priced cars for 90 days against defects of workmanship and materials. The Simplex on the other hand, was the only American car fully guaranteed for one year. The company, in addition, guaranteed the mechanical parts of the car indefinitely if the original owner did not sell it.

Same Specifications

Another service offered by the company provided that if the car broke down away from the owner's home, the company would pay expenses for the family to return home or hotel expenses until the auto could be repaired.

Some of the specifications of the car include spoke wheels, dual ignition, four large cylinders which have a cubic inch displacement greater than the present day Cadillac or Chrysler. It is capable of speeds up to 80 miles per hour, has four foreward gears and one reverse, and a gasoline tank capacity of 40 gallons with a four-gallon reserve.

Storey, who learned about autos from his father's automotive business when he was a boy, last year completed restoration of another auto, a 1903 Holley Motorette, believed to be the first commercial car in Western Maryland.

The Simplex will be on display until the last of this month when Storey leaves for Charlotte, N. C. The local man has been a resident of Cumberland for 23 years and is employed as an assistant superintendent with the Celanese Corporation of America.

This month he will move to Charlotte where he will continue work with the Celanese Corporation. However, he plans to continue his hobby of restoring cars.

5 Local Youths Face Hearings In Theft Wave

Five local youths, including three brothers, face hearings in Juvenile Court this morning in connection with a wave of thefts and vandalism which occurred in Cumberland over a period of several months.

The solution to the series of thefts and vandalism by City Police came about Monday with the arrest of the three brothers who later admitted being involved in the wave.

Stole Purses, Car Parts

Two other youths, picked up, were questioned, and admitted taking part. Yesterday, city detectives reported some of the boys admitted taking seven pocketbooks from Constitution Park since its opening this year. Total amount of money involved was about $10 and the usual contents of the pocketbooks were thrown away.

A watch reportedly taken was later recovered. On February 6, 1953, four 15-inch chrome wheel covers, a generator, four chrome rims and two batteries were taken from Whetsell's Garage, 120 North Centre Street. The boys told police they were involved in the theft and had sold the goods.

The parents of the juveniles have been summoned to report for the hearings.

Officer J. Henry Stitcher provided the first break in the cases Sunday when he picked up the young North End brothers, ranging in age from 12 to 16 years.

The borthers reportedly admitted taking about $700 worth of jewelry from a car while it was parked at a North Centre Street service station.

Damaged Church Interior

Detective Roy C. Hawse said the boys later told him they had been involved in several other cases, and implicated a fourth boy.

Van and Detective Leo E. P. Law said the fourth lad, 13, of North End, admitted taking part in the entry of an unused Wallace Street building formerly occupied by North Cumberland (now Central) Assembly of God Church on May 12 when about $100 worth of property was damaged. This case was cleared up Monday following questioning by the detectives.

Lt. Van said officers learned that the boys had been stealing and selling articles over a period of several months in order to obtain spending money.
